CIRCUSES.

THE TENTING SEASON OF '71

AN AUTHENTIC RECORD

Of the Various Circuses, Menageries, Museums, Side Shows, and other Traveling Exhibitions to be on the Road.

LIST OF PERFORMERS ENGAGED, ETC.

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

The tenting season of circuses and menageries is peculiarly an American institution. In no other country does it prevail, and although an attempt was made in years gone by to introduce it in England, by Mr. L. B. Titus, a veteran American manager, who traveled there for a season under canvas, it did not prove a permanent success; its novelty created some little sensation, but the English people did not take to it kindly and it fell into disuse. The advent of a circus or menagerie into a country town creates the greatest excitement among the citizens, and the day becomes a gala one, like unto the fourth of July or other national holidays. Business is suspended during the hours of exhibition, and the inhabitants give themselves up to recreation. People residing in the suburbs pour into the town in vehicles of every shape, while many perform the journey on foot. Unless the village schools grant their pupils a holiday the attendance is very light, as the boys will see the circus even if they play truant and crawl under the canvas so to do. A large amount of capital is required to put a circus on the road. The canvas and seats are expensive, and then it requires a large number of horses and strongly constructed wagons to transport it and the other baggage through the country. The item of pictorial printing alone is very heavy, often amounting to some $25,000 in a single season, and this amount does not include advertising. The expense of bill boards for a season is an important item; these are contracted for by the business agent, who makes a bargain with a carpenter to furnish the lumber and erect the bill board, which oftentimes is twelve feet high by one hundred and fifty feet long, and after the exhibition is over the boards revert to the carpenter. A force of bill posters travel in advance of the circus and are known as the paste brigade. The running daily expenses of a circus or menagerie, or either alone, is from $500 to some $1,200. This amount must be taken every day, or ruin shortly stares the owners in the face. The show must be on the lot at the time advertised, no matter what the weather or the obstacles to be overcome. A few days of stormy weather, with muddy roads, besides taxing to the utmost the energies of all the workingmen of the show, oftentimes makes a large drain upon the treasury, which it will take weeks of labor to restore. As it may interest our readers to know how a circus or menagerie is managed, we will concisely state the modus operandi, from its formation to the giving of the first performance. During the month of February or March the managers assemble in New York city for the purpose of engaging their performers for the coming season, and then a route is decided upon, which is kept most religiously a profound secret, to prevent, if possible, two shows being advertised at or near the same time in the same town. We will suppose, for the purpose of this description, that the canvas, seats, horses, wagons, etc., have been already secured, and that they are in their winter quarters, where they are being thoroughly overhauled and repaired for the approaching campaign. The route having been determined upon, and the necessary amount of pictorial printing secured, ready to be boxed and shipped upon the receipt of a telegram, the chief agent, with a plan of the route and printed blanks for all kinds of contracts, a sufficient quantity of pictorial bills and a corps of bill posters, starts for the towns it is proposed to visit, arriving in the first of which, he must secure a license to exhibit, which is oft-times attended with much difficulty; then a lot on which to perform must be secured, then contracts with the hotels and stables made for the keeping of the men and horses, both large in number, contracts for beef, hay, oats and other food for the animals; also contracts for advertising in the local papers; these must all be executed in duplicate, one copy of which must be returned to the manager at headquarters. He must also secure bill boards and eligible sites therefor. This accomplished, he pushes on seriatim to the towns mapped on the proposed route, leaving behind him full instructions for another agent, who follows in his wake. This agent, on arriving, sees that the bills are properly posted, inserts the advertisements in the newspapers, according to contract, and attends to such other commissions as the chief agent may have left for him in writing. When the day of exhibition arrives, for all the work above named has been accomplished some ten days or more in advance, the show starts at an early hour in the morning, in a procession, with the wagons arranged in the proper order; those that are first required, leading the van. The most rigorous discipline is here maintained, as every wagon must come upon the ground in precise order, place and time, so that there may be no confusion or delay. On arriving at the outskirts of the village, a halt is made, the wagons containing the tent, poles and other necessary apparatus proceed to the lot where the exhibition is to take place, and the remaining wagons are prepared for the grand procession or street parade; the glittering costumes are donned, the banners unfurled, the musicians are ready with their instruments in the chariot, and when all is prepared the procession moves through the principal streets to the place of exhibition and is there disbanded. The tent is so quickly raised that it almost seems like magic, but it is simply the result of perfect discipline. Under the direction of the boss canvas man, every man takes his assigned position; he has but little to do, but that must be perfectly done and at the proper moment. After the grounds are prepared for the coming exhibition, all hands partake of the noontide meal. Then comes the afternoon performance, at the close of which supper follows and an hour or two of rest. Then the evening exhibition takes place, and the moment it is over work again commences. The tents are struck, and every thing loaded into its proper wagon. The performers and workmen then partake of what is called breakfast, and the entire show starts upon its journey to the next town, traveling all night, a journey sometimes of thirty or forty miles, while, on the next and succeeding days, the same routine is gone through for a period of about twenty-eight weeks. Sunday is a day of rest, the route being generally so arranged that no travel is necessary until near midnight of that day. Upon the arrival in each town an attache, called the "layer out," assigns the rooms in the hotels to the various performers and employees. The treasurer, besides selling tickets and counting his receipts, pays the orders upon the treasury, which the agents in advance have left in payment for bills. This is but a brief outline of the vast amount of labor required. There is a corps of farriers, who shoe the horses; mechanics, who can repair a wagon that breaks down on the road, and, in fact, in every department competent men are to be found to repair all damages by accident. Some shows travel entirely by railroad, making the labors of the employees much lighter. Others carry with them a portable canvas hotel, so to speak, with cooking utensils and everything requisite to provide food and lodging for their employees.

With the exception of a few concerns that have not thought it worth while to send us the information we solicited, we append a complete list of the performers, managers and attaches of the various shows that take to the road this season, with a description of their salient features, gathered from official sources, and, therefore, to be relied on as correct:—

P. T. BARNUM'S MUSEUM, MENAGERIE, CARAVAN AND HIPPODROME.

This immense combination, its first appearance on the road, is fully described in all its departments, as follows:

White, Dominant Hero of Wild Beasts, assisted by Abdul Zid, Keri Shiahak and Mial Zaldad, from the Zoological Gardens of King Theodorus of Abyssinia (the last three named, descendants from Ishmael, assisted in the capture, and superintended the shipment of the great cargo of living wild animals recently imported from Asia and South Africa, and will themselves constitute no inconsiderable feature of the Great Exhibition).

The Bareback Riders and Equestriennes, embracing many well known in the profession, and many who will make their American debut with this show, are:—Pauline Hindley, Mrs. Dan Castello, Carlotta La Vinci, Maria Celeste Garnier, the Marion Sisters, William Dutton, Master Dan Castello, Geo. North, Alexander Bliss and Chas. Simpson.

Gymnasts, Leapers, Tumblers and Acrobats—Messrs. Burnell Runnells and two sons, Hawley and Mlacco, English, Smith, Cook, Hastings, Cavendish, Fitzgerald, Don Giovanni, Pennington, Shulenberger, Horace and Vincent—all first-class English, French, German and Italian artists, engaged on special contract expressly for this establishment by Mr. Barnum's agents in Europe.

Clowns—Messrs. Dan Castello, W. Wallett and Jullien Forester.

Trick Horses—"Czar," "Floating Island" and "Senator."

Performing Dwarfs—"Commodore Nutt" and "Admiral Dot."

Trick Mules—"Artemus" and "Timothy."

Number of men employed, 250; number of horses, 345, number of wagons, carriages, cages, chariots and dens, 95; cages in Museum Department, &c., 60.

Animals.—Elephants, Rhinoceros, Eland, Gnu, Impfoo, Nylghau, White Camels, ten Arabian Camels and Dromedaries, two Asiatic Yaks, Horned Horse, Royal Abyssinian Lions, from the Zoological Gardens of King Theodorus—the largest and most magnificent specimens ever seen in captivity—Bengal Tigers, Gold Spotted Leopard. Among the collection is a beautiful black Leopard, the second ever seen in the United States, and the first one of more than twenty years—Panthers, Pumas, Cougars, Jaguars, pair of Zebras (trained to harness), two Giant Kangaroos, one of them eight feet high; two Black Yaks or Abyssinian Wart Hogs, the only ones ever imported; Egyptian Crocodiles and Alligators, Sea Lions, Walrus, White Polar Bears, Bornean Sun Bears, Rocky Mountain Sheep, Anacondas and Boa Constrictors, twenty feet long, Apes, Monkeys, Baboons, and a long list of minor animals, besides endless numbers of birds of the rarest plumage from all parts of the earth, among which are Ostrich and Cassowary of gigantic proportions. In addition to this list of animals, &c., another car load of rare animals is expected early in May from Malayan Taprir, Rhinoceros, Giraffe, Sacred Elephants, a White Rhinoceros, and many other marvelous animals.

This Mammoth Exhibition is composed of three separate and distinct departments, viz:—Museum, Menagerie and Hippodrome; all absolutely unique in their character, requiring three colossal tents, and three sets of men, so admirably arranged that a single ticket will secure admission to the three great shows.

In the Museum Department, among the numerous curiosities, may be found the following—Admiral Dot, the renowned Californian dwarf; the French Giant, 8 feet 2 inches high; Miss Annie Leak, the young lady born without arms; the Infant Esau, or Bearded Child, a little girl five years old, and literally covered with hair several inches long; the life sized figures representing the Eucharist or Last Supper; the Automaton Trumpeter, a marvel of mechanical skill; French Mirabelles, brought from the Paris Exposition; Sedan Automaton life size figures of the Sleeping Beauty, Dying Zouave, Drummer, etc.; Museum of Natural History; Curiosities from the Red Sea and the Holy Land; Monkey Violinist, Siamese Twins and Albinos; Automaton Bell Ringers; Japanese Chinese, Esquimaux and Feejee curiosities; the Happy Family and Egyptian Mummy, 3,000 years old; Mechanical Singing Birds; Powers' Great Statue of Proserpine, a chef d'œuvre of art; life sized figure of King William, Von Moltke, Bismarck, Prince Charles, Napoleon III and Charles Dickens; "Tinselled Eden of the Fairies" and "Garden of Hesperides" prize articles of patch-work and darning from Old Country Matrons; Infantile Automaton Magic Lantern Scene and teeth of an Arctic whale, etc.; Digger Indians from the Yosemite Valley, California, besides many other curiosities not mentioned above. The wagons, carriages, cages, chariots and dens, which have been made on this side of the Atlantic, are models of the most exquisite workmanship and finish, no two being of the same color or design, while the massive and gorgeously decorated telescopic golden chariots, forty feet high, made in the city of London, Eng., will also appear in the street pageant. There will also be presented, for the first time, to public gaze on this continent, six royal chariots, mounted by golden Elephants. Lions and Tigers, with transparent crystal dens, in which will be seen monstrous reptiles 20 feet long, handled and performed during the procession by the great snake charmer from South Africa, Abdul Zaiad, presenting one of the most startling and sensational street exhibitions ever witnessed. This triune exhibition opens in Brooklyn for one week, April 10th, remains in the vicinity of New York three weeks, thence eastward the star of empire takes its way.

A. B. H., Towsontown, Md.—We adhere to our decision. In the first place, each player has a say as to the disposition of the trump; if the elder hand, B, on the left of the dealer, passes, then C has the turn. Now if he offers to assist A, the dealer, and the latter takes it up, it virtually robs D of his say in the matter, whose right to pass on the trump comes before the dealer's. If C had ordered it up, then all would have been in order, but offering to assist amounts to nothing, for D must have a say before A can have the privilege of going alone. We insist that this whole "assisting" business is a fraud and should not be permitted.

C. G., Meadville, Pa.—1. Ireland. 2. The contract to carry the United States mails has been given to the National Steamship line, but the Cunard and Inman lines also carry them. 3. The fastest passage, both eastward and westward, has been made by steamers of the Inman line. 4. Joe Coburn fought a draw with Ed. Price, 16Or., Sh. and 20m., May 1st, 1856; both Harry Gribbin, 21r., 30m., Nov. 18th, 1857, and Mike McCoole, 67r., 1h. and 10m., May 5, 1863.

JOHNNY, Chicago.—The following is a draft of a contract which will hold good, provided it be accompanied with security for its performance by the club:—"CHICAGO, April 10th, 1871.—This is to certify that I, John Smith, have this day agreed to give my services as a base ball player, for the months from date, to the Chicago Club, of Chicago, at a weekly salary of — dollars, payable on the last Saturday of each month. (Signed) JOHN SMITH. Witnesses—W. Brown, John White."

W. F. FINLEY, San Francisco.—Your letter was forwarded to the Secretary of the National Association of Amateur Players, that bearing the only association now in existence except the "Professional Association." The Pacific clubs can no longer be represented in the Association by their state organization, but only through individual clubs.

PEARL STREET, Albany.—Having dealt the cards himself, and then playing his hand out before calling attention to the error, of course it was nothing but fair he should take the consequences, and therefore could not claim another deal. His opponents could have claimed a new deal, however, had they chosen so to do.

J. C., Suterville, Pa.—A should have shown a 4 lb. 8 oz. stag according to the articles, or have that battle scored against him by default, unless B specially agreed to allow him to fight at a 4 lb. 7 oz. cock. The main ought to have been fought out, the battle above mentioned being scored to B.

HAMILTON ROBINSON.—The rules differ in various editions of Hoyle. We have already decided that no one has the privilege of going alone except the player who makes, or assumes the responsibility of the trump. Jones, under the circumstances you mention, could not go alone.

L. PORTER, Washington.—Only the clubs belonging to the National Association of Professional Players are bound by the rules of that association. You can become probationary members by applying to Secretary N. E. Young, Washington. The Amateur Association do not recognize any championship, and no amateur club can enter for the professional championship or win it.

F. B., Philadelphia.—The chequer board numbering is commenced at the first white square at the top left hand corner, running 1, 2, 3, across, and so on in order to the bottom of the publication in books; in play, however, the board is placed so that the black squares take the places of the white, as a general thing.

A FAN, Toronto, Ont.—1. Some persons find it necessary to reduce their weight to more than that extent before they are in proper condition. It depends entirely upon the amount of useless flesh you possess. Consult some professional in person. 2. There is no average. Can't tell that until the year's end.

IMPEACHED.—1. Bob Way's best recorded standing jump is 12ft. 8½in. He has cleared a greater distance, but as he was beaten, it does not go on the record. 2. No. 3. Yes. 4. The difference in time between New York and Greenwich, Eng., is 4 hours and 57 minutes.

MINGO, Titusville.—You have probably misunderstood the gentleman; such a statement must have appeared with reference to some individual, but not in a general sense; that would be ridiculous, when we have correspondents all over the country.

BRUISER.—Lilly and McCoy fought between Yonkers and Hastings, the encounter terminating in favor of the latter. Yankee Sullivan did not second either man, but was in Lilly's corner, giving him his advice.

CONSTANT READER, Virginia, Nev.—B wins $25 on the ten. The cue box has nothing to do with the game, which is not responsible for its being correctly kept. In this case, the dealer must pay the debt.

AN INTERESTED PARTY, Washington, D. C.—The Arnot Sisters did not come from England with the Lydia Thompson Troupe, but long after that troupe arrived they came here from San Francisco, Cal.

LOUIS LEO.—In reference to the enterprises to which you allude, we can only say that we have neither heard nor known anything derogatory to their characters, but at the same time we would advise caution.

D. C., Kansas City, Mo.—We are aware you challenged O'Connor again, but it appears that you had not placed any forfeit money in the hands of the party you stated you had in said challenge, which certainly didn't look like business.

W. S. B., Boston.—If there has been no arrangement between the authorities and the boy's employers, the latter can have him arrested on the second charge. It is probable that the boy has been put on his good behavior through the acquiescence of the firm.

THOS. B., Galena, Ill.—In Geo. Taylor walked 6 miles in 58:37; Westhall, 14 miles in 1:57:25; Davison, 21 miles in 2:53:34. 2. Lang and Richards ran a dead heat, one mile, in 4:17¾. 3. Deerfoot ran 11 miles 770 yards in an hour. 4. 11 lbs.

WORCESTER.—1. As the balls did measure 23½ and over, A won. 2. If a man measures 60. 2in., of course he is six feet high, and more too. 3. Winship's heaviest lift is reported to have been 2,900lbs. in harness.

A WORTHY READER.—Mr. Johnny Thompson plays upon shares during his present engagement at the Bowery Theatre. A certain sum called expenses is first deducted from the gross receipts, and the balance is divided equally between star and manager.

STRANGER.—The general estimate is 50,000; but the precise number we cannot state until the census returns are published, which are expected in a few days.

PITTSFIELD.—At cribbage, if the cards are played as follows—8, 7, 6, 5—the player of the 7 is entitled to two for fifteen; of the 6, four for a sequence, and of the last 8, two for 31 only.

URSA.—The lady was born in New York city, in 1832. Has been on the stage since she was a young child. Commenced starring in 1851.

HALLY, Pittsfield, Mass.—The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher is a congregationalist. The church is probably so named after Plymouth Rock, the landing place of the Pilgrim Fathers.

DAN E——y.—Send manuscript. The sketch you send us was published in the CLIPPER in the spring of 1869, there being five names, and that was the first we ever saw of it.

W. C. G.—We are glad to hear from you again, but the "Heathen Chinee" has been so overdone all through the country that we must decline your little screed for that reason alone.

BLUFFER, Honesdale.—In some places a straight beats three of a kind; in others only two pair. The point must be settled before starting, or the rule of the house must govern.

W. H. RAYNELL, Philadelphia.—1. The Jack turned up counts one for the dealer whether the cards run out afterwards or not. 2. Ace is highest.

SWITZER, Mercer, Pa.—The game should be played out and the points taken in successive order of precedence, high, low, Jack and game.

H. MCMAHON, Shreveport, La.—The American News Company, this city, attends to such matters for us. You had better address them.

C. MCCOY.—Diamonds being trumps, and the left bower led, a player having no trumps is not obliged to put on a heart if he has one; he may any one he likes, and that he prefers.

READER.—The drawings are on a square, we believe, but whether all the tickets sold here are, is questioned. Better not invest, for it may be a costly experience.

FAIR PLAY, Brooklyn.—On auction pitch, A having the sell, refusing the bid of three, and then not making them, is liable to a set back of the said three points.

A. B. M., Greenville, S. C.—The difficulty in which Poole lost his life arose from a feud long existing between him and Morrissey, Baker, Turner and others.

WALKER, Boston.—1. Send $2 to Ed. James for "Physical Exercises," which contains what you wish. 2. No authentic record of time for that distance in America.

NIMROD, Quincy.—The man is an impostor; we have no traveling correspondents. The manager acted very properly in refusing Bailey.

J. H.—A suit was instituted by Mr. McFarland to test the legality of the Indiana divorce, but we are not aware that any decision has been made in the matter.

SO RARE, Maysville.—If you read the CLIPPER you would not have asked the question you do. 1. Yes, he was. 2. See the Base Ball Manual when out. 3. Yes.

P. G. J. SEVERIN.—All that is necessary is to touch the base while the ball is in his hand, no matter with what part of his person. He is not required to hold his feet on it.

E. J. M., Albany.—A forfeit was twice put up for a match between Mace and Tom Sayers; on the first occasion Mace consented to draw the money, and on the second he received forfeit.

PERE O' DAY ROY.—By the three games won W gained one dollar, and by the last game played he lost the same amount, consequently he came out even, neither losing nor winning.

IKEY THOMPSON, Springfield, O.—1. He is living in this city. 2. Do not know where Dockney is. 3. It is worth whatever you can get for it.

PHŒNIX, Philadelphia.—As there are no rules published concerning the game, you will have to be guided by the custom of the place.

FOYER BILL.—1. Morrissey and Heenan fought at Long Point Island, Canada. 2. Heenan's right hand was badly injured by accidentally striking against a stake.

READER, Hamilton.—B loses the game by fraudulently taking up the King from the board. No player can take advantage of his own wrong doing.

MIKE CAHN, New Orleans.—The only games played between the Red Stockings and White Stockings in 1870 were both won by the Chicago nine, by scores of 10 to 6 and 16 to 13.

ARCTIC.—A letter addressed to him at Cincinnati will no doubt reach him, but his precise locale we don't know.

SUBSCRIBER.—Brooklyn and Williamsburg were consolidated under one municipal government in 1854.

TOM F. A.—Poughkeepsie—No. 1 Tenth Precinct Station house is located on Eldridge street, near Grand.

SENECA.—A member of a college club nine cannot play with any other club except the one to which he originally belonged.

HENRY, Montana, Ia.—Thank you; send along any items of interest.

R. P. M. AND P. S., Vicksburg, Miss.—There are a number in this country, besides those you mention, who have never been defeated.

J. JONES, Lonaconing, Md.—There are no colors for sale yet, and we are not positive that there will be.

H. C. S., Richmond, Va.—Enclose 50 cents to Ed. James for a copy of his book. We do not have them.

GUSSE.—Master Barney was born in Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 29th, 1859.

J. D.—Ashcroft and Morton have performed in many other theatres besides the Comique in this city.

C. H. G., Columbus, O.—1. You may send brief reports of amusements. 2. We never issue cards.

CASCA, KansasCity, Mo.—We prefer that the name should not be used for free extra purposes.

CINCINNATI, O.—1. McKean Buchanan was born in Philadelphia. 2. Mme Parepa Rosa was born in Edinburgh, Scotland.

R. V., Ohio.—The five largest cities in the United States are: New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, St. Louis and Chicago.

POST, Indianapolis.—It is probably too late now, as the advertisement was received a month ago.

E. S. J., Grand Rapids, Mich.—St. Louis has a larger population than Chicago, according to the last census.

V. O. U., Kansas City.—We get all necessary items from our correspondent there. We thank you for your offer all the same.

BILL MCCARTY, Cairo, Ill.—Send to Ed. James, 88 and 90 Centre street, this city, for Wood's "Physical Exercises," price, $2.

CHESTER OAK, Cohoes.—The Epsom Derby is run this year on Wednesday, May 24th; it is not always run on a Wednesday.

E. D. L., Philadelphia.—With such a sweeping challenge you should have sent a deposit.

W. H., Rochester.—We have no permit, when he won the Derby in 1867, another sailor named Peter Wilson, on the scoop of their boarding house, Cherry street, New York, on March 30th.

READER, Boston.—The dealer must tell how many cards he took himself at draw poker, but not how many any other player drew.

E. F., Johnstown, N. Y.—The difficulty in which Poole lost his life arose from a feud long existing between him and Morrissey, Baker, Turner and others.

WALKER, Boston.—1. Send $2 to Ed. James for "Physical Exercises," which contains what you wish. 2. No authentic record of time for that distance in America.

NIMROD, Quincy.—The man is an impostor; we have no traveling correspondents. The manager acted very properly in refusing Bailey.

THE WHITE STOCKINGS defeated the Southern Club, of New Orleans, on Sunday, April 2d, by a score of 32 to 10. They had previously defeated the Excelsior Juniors, of New Orleans by a score of 29 to 0.

BUNTING, COFFER AND GALLIHER called at the CLIPPER office on April 3d. These strong players have been engaged by the Kekionga Club, of Fort Wayne.

TO COLORED PROFESSIONALS.—A good catcher and good left hand pitcher are wanted for the Brown Stockings, of St. Louis. A good salary will be given for the season. Address Douglass Smith, 109 North 5th street, St. Louis, Mo.

THE ROCHESTER CLUB, of Rochester, N. Y., sends us a challenge to any other junior club in western and central New York, to play for the championship.

BILLIARDS.

DION AND RUDOLPHE.—Against the advice of his friends, who represented to him that his long and tedious journey from Chicago to San Francisco had unfitted him to compete with one who had been in steady practice for weeks, Cyrille Dion, immediately upon his arrival in Frisco, allowed Rudolphe to banter him into playing for $100 a side in two games, or rather Rudolphe staked in each $150 against $100. Dion could not play at all, and had but 97 points in one game and 197 in another. Since then they have played 1,500 points up for $200, Dion winning by 491. A subsequent game, stake not stated nor majority telegraphed, was won by Rudolphe. Three games were played on the night of the 25th and the morning of the 26th ult., at the warerooms of George E. Puelan.

THE OHIO BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH, between Harry Choate, of Springfield, and Anthony Hosing, of Cincinnati, for the golden cue and a purse of $200, was played on the evening of the 1st inst. at Springfield, and after a cue-taneous set-to of 3¼ hours, at the 28th innings Honing proved the victor, the telegraph informs us, his average being 32 to Choate's 29.

NEW ROOMS.—Capt. Boyle opened his room at 243 Broadway on the 3d; Charles Fink will open another on the 10th, and Austin and Dickenson are on the point of opening one in the Globe Hotel, Syracuse—all furnished with the Standard American tables, Fink having some of the new, or beveled style.

DEERY AND C. DION.—It is thought that the three-ball game, for $500 a side, between John Deery and Cyrille Dion, will take place about the 5th inst., at Platt's Hall, San Francisco. They are to play 500 up on a 5x10 table. Deery is quite confident of success.

BROOKLYN VS. N. Y. AMATEURS.—There is now a likelihood of a match being brought about between the leading amateurs, respectively, of Samuells' and Wizeman's rooms, four on a side.

"OVER IN NEW JERSEY."—Lively times are in store for the billiardists of New Jersey. Due notice will appear in our next.

GARNIER VS. COON.—There is a faint prospect of a match at the three-ball game between these experts, both residents at present of Chicago.

THE GREENWOOD QUOIT CLUB open play at Mitchelson's, Fifth avenue and 18th street, Brooklyn, on Monday, April 10th.

THE TRIGGER.

MATCHES DECIDED.—David Barrett and Stephen Mather were opponents in a match for $200 a side, 21 single birds each, at Buffalo, lately, the former killing 17 to 16..... Jas. Hoyt shot 9 birds to P. Marston's 7 out of 11 in a match for $100 a side at New London, Ct., March 11th. .....John Stebbins was beaten by D. Martin in a match for $200, 11 singles each, at Buffalo, N. Y., on March 22d; score, 9 to 8.

TRAP SHOOTING FOR MUTTON.—A shooting contest for two large sheep, five single birds each, came off at H. Rhile's, Penrose Ferry, Philadelphia, a few days ago, resulting as follows:—Jos. Schoefield, 11111—5; Bob Rivel, 11111—5; John Cornell, 1110—3; Henry Rhile, 1110—3; E. Mahar, 1110—4; Chas. Twadell, 1010—11; Geo. Bosler, 11110 —4. Judges, W. Sorrell and E. Gorman.

THE AUDUBON SPORTSMEN'S CLUB, of Rochester, were lately the recipients of an elegant frosted silver punch-bowl of the capacity of three gallons, manufactured by Grover & Kurtz. The donor was Mr. Charles Wells, of this city, and the club may well be proud of the gift.

A SWEEPSTAKES at four single birds each, twenty-one yards rise, was shot at Utica, N. Y., on March 24th. J. Crook and Jos. Smyth killed all their birds and divided the first prize. M. Mayhew took the second and George Beesley the third.

SHERMAN DEFEATS HARTSHORNE.—On Wednesday, 29th ult., a match for $100, 15 single birds each, 18 yards rise and 80 boundary, 1¼ oz. shot, came off at Ward's, on the Coney Island road, between the above named parties, Sherman bringing down 11 to his antagonist's 8.

A. R. SAMUELLS and G. H. Mitchelson are matched to shoot for $500 a side, 18 yards rise and 80 yards boundary, at Ward's Hotel, Coney Island road, on Easter Monday, April 10th.

HARTSHORNE AND SHERMAN are to try their skill in bird shooting again at Mitchelson's, Brooklyn, on Easter Monday.

PEDESTRIANISM.

PEDESTRIAN MATCH.—A foot race, for a badge of the value of $100, took place on the evening of March 30th, at Maires' Gymnasium, 29 St. Mark's place, in this city, between Col. Van Wyck and Mr. Richard Meares, of Jersey. There was a large assemblage present and the betting was spirited, Meares being the favorite at $100 to $50. To complete the mile it was necessary to make the crescent of the gymnasium twenty-five times. The start took place at 8.30 P. M. precisely. On the 13th round Meares had gained half a lap on his opponent, and this advantage he held for five laps. On the 19th round Meares unexpectedly broke down, and the Colonel, passing him, won the race. Time, 6 min. 10 sec. Meares' defeat is alleged to be attributable to his having slipped in his training, the week before, and sprained his leg.

SAMUELLS AND THE GARNIERS.—The famous Brooklyn roomkeeper has issued a card of complaint against Madame and Monsieur Garnier, who were jointly to have given an exhibition at the Assembly Billiard House, but did not. While it may be questioned whether the publication of a card at this late day is in the best possible taste, it is certain that Mr. Samuels has had good reason to consider himself aggrieved. On the other hand, circumstances in mitigation may be urged by Garnier and his wife, the exhibition having fallen through in consequence of the illness of the latter.

DUFTON AND CROSBY.—Thomas Dutton is desirous of making a match to run one hundred yards, scratch start, for from $100 to $250 a side, with James Crosby, and requests the latter to meet him at the CLIPPER office on Thursday, April 6th, at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of signing articles and making a deposit of a century to bind the same; this challenge to remain open two weeks, and, if accepted, the race to take place on Long Island within four weeks from signing.

CURLING MATCH.—On the afternoon of March 28th, a curling match was played on the Thistle ice, Montreal, C. E., between four Skips and four Thirds, the latter gaining a decided victory. The match was played in four games of 7 shots, each player thus playing in every part of the game. The score:—

Skips.		Thirds.
Robert Muir	6	John Mitchell	7
D. J. Greenshields	0	Jas. Esdaile	7
Alex. Mitchell	3	John Cassills	7
O. W. Gould	7	J. S. Craig	2
Total	16	Total	23

The Thirds winning three out of four games and by 7 shots.

AN OLD LAND MARK GOING.—King's Brewery Shades, for several years one of the institutions of West Forty-first street, is to disappear to make room for the march of improvement up town. Some day this week the jovial Tom King vacates the little frame cottage for a more imposing one on West Forty-second street, No. 816, where, we believe, he intends to remain the pioneer in skittles, bagatelle and shuffle-board. Due notice will be given of the grand opening.

OYSTER OPENING FOR A WAGER.—A short time since, two oyster openers, from the Eastern market, Philadelphia, named Thompson and Mason, offered to wager a certain sum that they could open more of the bivalves in half an hour by stabbing, than any two men working at Vogan's oyster bay could by cracking. Messrs. Carroll and Bloom accepted the challenge, and $20 a side was staked in Harry Ginkinger's hands. The latter pair won, opening 880 to their opponents' 717.

A PISCATORIAL CURIOSITY has been received at the New York College, from Germany, reported as being "a remarkably fine specimen of the fish reptile of the Tias," measuring 12 feet long. It is very complete, the head, vertebræ, fin and tail being remarkably perfect. It is imbedded in a dark marl-slate, and inspection under a microscope discovers the bone in the stone.

A MATCH GAME AT QUOITS was pitched at Alton, Ill., March 28th, between Charles Holcombe and John Curdie, distance 11 yards, each pitcher to choose his own weight of quoit; 16 points up. The score stood:—Curdie 16; Holcombe, 7. The stakes were $50 a side.

ROYAL SLEEVE BUTTONS.—W. M. Welling, whose card appears among our advertisements, manufactures quite a variety of curious sleeve buttons, representing death's heads, cat's heads, dogs, etc.

MISS ADA HARLAND AS COLUMBIA ROUSE IN HORIZON! OPINIONS OF THE PRESS. Miss Ada Harland acted charmingly as Columbia Rouse, and the song sung by her on the flat-boat was an attractive feature.—N. Y. Clipper. It is a high compliment to Miss Harland's histrionic abilities to say that she assumes the role of Miss Columbia with great success. .....Ada Harland is a capital Columbus, and looks herself—that is, very pretty.—Citizen and Round Table. Miss Harland as Columbia Rouse created a decidedly favorable impression by the dashing liveliness of her actions.—Telegram. Miss Ada Harland, who, with that swell way so essentially hers, gives a very amusing interpretation of a Washington belle, the fascinator of the law makers.—Commercial Advertiser. Miss Ada Harland acts with vivacity and grace.—Evening Post. Columbia Rouse, the lobby member's daughter, is vivaciously and very pleasantly represented by Ada Harland.—Atlas. Miss Ada Harland exerts herself to the utmost to lurch with vitality and meaning the somewhat shadowy and purposeless outline of Miss Columbia Rouse, and sings her song charmingly.—Times. The daughter is very well played by Miss Ada Harland, who possesses ability which is wasted in burlesque.—Star. Miss Harland made as favorable an impression in the proper habiliments of her sex as any she ever made in scantier drapery in the school of burlesque, and showed so great an aptitude for the legitimate as should lead her to drink deeper of the Pierian Spring.—Mercury. WHEN YOU COME TO CRITICISE THE ACTING OF SUCH A PIECE AS "HORIZON," THERE IS OPPORTUNITY FOR THE FIERCEST PEN. EVEN WITHOUT PENETRATING DEEPER INTO THE WORK THAN MISS ADA HARLAND OF ALL THE STAGEY, UNENDURABLE ACTRESSES I EVER MET, SHE IS THE MOST UNCHANGEABLY AND ABOMINABLY ARTIFICIAL. EVERY WORD SHE UTTERS IS TOO THICK WITH AFFECTATION TO BE PROPERLY UNDERSTOOD. BUT LET US LEAVE THIS DISAGREEABLE TOPIC. WHEN A JIG DANCER GETS INTO MELO-DRAMA IT IS ONLY NATURAL, PERHAPS, THAT SHE SHOULD "BREAK DOWN" IN HER UTTERANCE.—Nym Crinkle. 1-1t*

FRELIGH TOOK THE RAILROAD AND DRAWBRIDGE SCENE which he has introduced into ON HAND FROM MY DRAMA, "$150,000," which I left at the Bowery to be read. LEDGER JOB PRINT. AND ENGRAVING, PHILADA.

WALNUT STREET THEATRE, PHILADELPHIA. CROWDED, FASHIONABLE AND DELIGHTED AUDIENCES. SECOND WEEK OF THE LONDON, PARIS AND NEW YORK PANTOMIME COMPANY. In the great Spectacular Pantomime, in 2 acts and 17 tableaux, by by Jas. McCloskey, author of Across the Continent, &c., entitled THE THREE HUNCHBACKS. THE ENTIRE PRESS AND PUBLIC pronounce the entertainment complete in BEAUTY, DETAIL and GRANDEUR, and award the highest praise to the MARTINETTI FAMILY, THE GREAT RIZARELLI BROTHERS, NATHANIEL ROGERS AND HIS TWO SONS, THE BALLET TROUPE, DRAMATIC CORPS, THE SPLENDID DRESSES, THE SCENERY, THE NOVEL TRICKS, MUSIC, MARCHES, THE ABBOTT PANTOMIME COMPANY And the GORGEOUS TRANSFORMATION SCENE. The Public Ledger says:—"The Pantomime of the 'Three Hunchbacks' was produced last night at this theatre before a large audience. Everything passed off satisfactorily. The tricks and scenery have never been surpassed in our city. The dresses are unequaled and the ballet constitutes one of the most beautiful features of the performance. The transformation scene, with the advantage of another rehearsal, promises to be one of the most gorgeous ever presented to the public. The piece will undoubtedly have a long run." From the Inquirer:—"* * * * * 'The Three Hunchbacks,' the first of the new school played here, was produced to a fine house last evening and received a greater ovation than is usual on the first nights. * * * Taking it all in all, the pantomime of 'The Three Hunchbacks' deserves, and, we believe, will have a long run. In the interests of fun and jollity we wish it success." From the Age:—"The scenery is superb, the tricks fresh, novel and startling, and the transformations of the most amusing character. The costumes are, also, varied in such an artistic manner as to produce by contrast the most happy and agreeable effect. At some points in the piece the stage looks, in truth, like a scene of enchantment. 'The Three Hunchbacks' bids fair to create a furore and have a long run." From the Press:—"The performance of the spectacular pantomime at the Walnut last night was a grand success. The tricks, the dancing, the scenery, the 'language of action,' of the talented Martinettis were capital. The pantomime will have a great run and will create an excitement among our theatre goers that has seldom been equaled in this city." The Sunday Times says:—The London, Paris and New York Pantomime Company has met with unbounded success at the Walnut, and their entertainment has been voted one of the best and most enjoyable of the season. The company is large and talented, and the scenery, appointments, etc., of the play are of the most gorgeous and elaborate description. "The Three Hunchbacks" is a pantomime of unusual merit, the tricks mostly being new and the situations and incidents comical in the extreme. The grand Transformation Scene at the close of the piece is truly a magnificent production, surpassing anything of the kind ever attempted in this country. It is perfectly ablaze with beauty and brilliancy, and the eye gazes upon it as upon some dazzling scene of fairy enchantment. On EASTER MONDAY, April 10th, all the permanent attractions of the company, including MLLE. BONFANTI, SIG. NOVISSIMO and their ballet troupe, The GREAT SKATERS, MOE AND GOODRICH, J. C. FRANKLIN (all of Niblo's Garden, N. Y.) and the ABBOTT PANTOMIME COMPANY will be gathered together, and the combination of artistic ability will be such as to make the London, Paris and New York Pantomime Company UNAPPROACHABLE, either in EUROPE or AMERICA. Communications to be addressed to the Business Agent A. S. PENNOYER, 1-1t Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

SPECIAL ATTENTION OF MANAGERS OF VARIETY AND OTHER THEATRES, is called to the fact that THE IMPERIAL JAPANESE TROUPE, WITH LITTLE ALL RIGHT as the principal card, will arrive in this country in May. This is the original troupe brought to this country in 1867, by Prof. Risley, and the same that LITTLE ALL RIGHT appeared with. The report that LITTLE ALL RIGHT had been killed is untrue, and he will positively once more appear before the American public. This troupe will consist of performers, every one of whom has some specialty, and not like many so called JAPANESE TROUPES, announce from sixteen to twenty in the troupe, while only four or six are performers, the others being servants. No troupe of Japs that have ever visited America can perform the same number of acts or anything similar to them. All communications must be addressed to 1-1t COL. T. ALLSTON BROWN.

DE WITT, PUBLISHER DE WITT BUILDING, No. 33 Rose Street, N. Y. IMPORTANT TO THEATRICAL MANAGERS. I AM NOW PREPARED TO FURNISH MANUSCRIPT COPIES OF THE FOLLOWING SUCCESSFUL PLAYS!

JEZEBEL; OR, THE DEAD RECKONING, A DRAMA IN THREE ACTS, BY DION BOUCICAULT.

"JEZEBEL" is a very powerful drama, full of thrilling situations, and has some capital characters, both serious and humorous. The leading female character is a splendid one.

JEZEBEL was produced at the Royal Holborn Theatre, London, and is fast approaching the hundredth performance. It is now running at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, where its success is very decided. This drama has six male and five female characters.

"OURS," A COMEDY IN THREE ACTS, By T. W. Robertson, AUTHOR OF "SCHOOL," "CASTE," ETC.

One of the most successful pieces ever played. In London it always draws immense houses, and always fills the treasury at Wallack's whenever produced. While it admits of fine scenic display, it can be effectively produced with little outlay. This comedy contains six male and three female characters.

UNCLE'S WILL, A COMEDIETTA IN ONE ACT, By Theyre Smith, AUTHOR OF A "HAPPY PAIR," ETC.

This is a very remarkable piece, having only three characters. It has been eminently successful at the Royal Haymarket, London. The charming character of Florence Marygold was written expressly for Miss Madge Robertson, (a sister of the famous author of "Caste," "Ours," etc.

I will supply MS. copies of either of the above three plays, to the Profession, at Low Rates.

One Hundred of De Witt's Acting Plays ARE NOW READY, PRICE 15c. Among them will be found a great number of New and Sterling Comedies, Dramas and Farces.

No. 2.—NOBODY'S CHILD. A Dramatic Play in 3 Acts, by Watts Phillips; 18 male, 2 female characters. This very effective piece is to be produced at the French Theatre, under the management of Mr. Creswick, the famous London Manager and Tragedian. This gentleman made a great success of the hero of this play.

No. 14.—NO THOROUGHFARE. A Drama in 5 Acts and a Prologue, by Charles Dickens and Wilkie Collins; 13 male, 6 female characters. This is the only edition of No Thoroughfare ever printed, as played in London, with such eminent success, by Mr. Fechter, and since produced in Boston by Mr. F. with equal success.

No. 10.—DEARER THAN LIFE. A Serio-Comic Drama, in 3 Acts, by H. T. Craven; 4 male, 3 female characters. This piece is a great favorite in England, and was very well received at Wood's Museum in this city.

No. 22.—DAVID GARRICK. A Comedy, in 3 Acts, by T. W. Robertson; 8 male, 3 female characters. This is a beautiful play, and won much praise in London. In this country it has been the making of the Boniface-Lingard Combination, who have played it in all the leading cities.

No. 37.—A SILENT PROTECTOR. A Farce, in 1 Act, by T. J. Williams; 3 male, 2 female characters. This is a brilliant little piece, and its London successes have been repeated at Lina Edwin's Theatre in this city.

Any of De Witt's Acting Plays will be sent to any address, postage paid, on receipt of price, 15 cents each. Address

Proprietors of Side Show and Concert—Ed. Bastenstoe; Candy Privilege, Ed. Stowe.

Chief Bill Poster—Will and C. Clark.

All the wagons are entirely new but the pole wagons, and are to be gaily green and gold, the grazing white; the horses are pas cled, with pictures painted in every panel, with four to six horses on each.

The procession will comprise 22 wagons without carriages. There is a large and fine band wagon, entirely new, to which 20 horses will be attached, finely equipped with head pieces, collar and back pieces; also plumes. This is one of the finest band teams in America. The canvas is 100 feet round top, with 25 foot centre piece, new seats, jacks and uprights. The stock is very fine, ten spotted horses for entree, two white and two spotted pad horses, one spotted hurdle horse, besides Mrs. Charles Warner's beautiful trained horse De Jara. Great pains have been taken in equipping this show, making it a winter's business, resulting in one of the finest equipped circuses now traveling. One feature in the show is a one-legged hurdle rider, who does a splendid act; better than is commonly done in circuses.

The circus will start on the road, making its first stand in Wanaston April 15th, thence north, through Michigan to Saginaw, thence through Canada to the States.

THE GREAT STONE AND MURRAY'S CIRCUS.

Officers—Proprietors, D. W. Stone, J. H. Murray; Manager, John H. Murray; General Business Agent, Jas. Wilder; Contracting Agent, Wm. Irving; Treasurer, M. Coyle; Master of Canvas, C. L. Ricker; Masters of Horse, G. H. Paul, A. Laley; Leader of Band, O. F. Perry.

Clowns—Tom Barry, Den Stone, C. Munroe.

Gymnasts, Tumblers, etc.—Snow Brothers, 4 in number, Signor Columbus, Eugene Leach, John Batchelor, Louis Lamont, Dan Snow, Wm. Ducrow, Master Georgie, Geo. Adams.

Trick Horses—Spot, Beauty, Black Eagle.

Trick Mules—Shellbark, Pete, Sally.

Number of men employed, 90; horses, 100; wagons, 24.

Proprietor of Candy Privilege—Cal. Stone

Chief Bill Poster—Hart.

This Circus, which is noted for its excellent order and superiority of performances, introduces this season new faces and acts, which cannot be surpassed by any other company. This company is organizing in Brooklyn; first performance will be given at Newark, on the 10th of April, and will travel the eastern states.

OVER THE CONTINENT.

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
and respectfully dedicated to Harry E. Parmelee,
BY MICHAEL MAGLUEN.

Over the rivers and over the lakes,
Over the prairies and over the states,
Over the iron bound world of the day,
'To see t'other side—we are off and away!"
Across where the Rockies commingle with skies,
Across where the Golden State haughtily lies,
Across where the rolling Pacific's at bay—
'Tis there—o'er the continent—we're off and away.

Over the mountains and over the hills,
Over the iron laid track on the sills,
Over each valley, and meadow, and lea,
We sweep the whole continent, sea unto sea,
Passing proud cities and towns in the route,
Passing Columbia's worshipped redoubt,
Passing proud monarchs along our way,
While crossing the continent, off and away.

By the farms of the yeoman, through granite and slate,
Through the winds of the west, where the Indian roams,
We're bound o'er the continent back to our homes.
Adieu tolling millions, we're off to a feast,
Adieu for a time, oh, ye land of the east;
Adieu, thrice adieu, oh ye sombre and gay,
While we're crossing the continent, off and away.

ON SILVER WINGS.

CHAPTER XVII.

LINTHORP-ON-THE-SEA.

A line of cliffs, standing boldly out against the sea that roared beneath and dashed its waves so high that one feared sometimes lest a small coast guard station, that was planted midway up the heights, should be overwhelmed. The spectator, looking from an elevated position, would command a wide expanse of sea. To the left, he would see rock jutting out after rock in a long sweep of projections, the white cliff line topped with an emerald verdure; and behind it the wild country, stretching out in scantily wooded mounds inland. To the right, a higher cliff, crowned by some ancient ruins, hid from sight the line of coast, that, in a still bolder range of heights, ran southward.

Linthorp might be said to be divided into two towns—the upper and the lower: though the two merged into each other so gradually, that it would be difficult to define where the one terminated and the other began. There was a more distinctive difference between the town itself and the quarter where the visitors took up their temporary residence. This portion was decidedly the high part, being built on the summit of the cliff, without regard to shelter that the architects of the older town had evidently sought for their erections; but wooing the breezes that blew from the ocean, and braving the fierceness of the storm-winds when they burst in fury over the waters.

To this portion of Linthorp the fashionable visitors in a great measure confined themselves. The promenade supplied them with exercise and amusement. The view was fine, and they were spared the fatigue of going up and down the steep streets of the older town. But those who wandered into those narrow alleys—for many of the streets were scarcely more—were well repaid by the quaint bits of stone and mortar they came upon, in the shape of archways, the common porches, steps, or in the scraps of garden, or in the foreign look of the house—all reminding one more of a continental town than of an English seaport. And if they gained the quay, the illusion was still further carried out by the gaily painted craft lying in the harbor, by the groups of foreign sailors, the prevalence of showy colors, the flowers along the window sills. And when one crossed the bridge, and found the windows close upon the river, with not a strip of land between when the tide was up; and then, again, pursued one's way through the narrow streets with shops of glittering jewelry, into the narrow market-place in all the bustle of a market day, or perchance of a fair being holden, and listened to the scarcely intelligible provincial dialect of the people, the illusion was almost perfect. One scarcely felt as though within the precincts of our island; or, rather, perhaps one felt inclined to indulge in the marvellous, and believe that some genii had stolen the quaint old town from some far distant country, and had hidden it away among the white cliffs of Albion; and then one began to speculate that that was the cause of the half-tumble-down appearance of some of the houses that had slightly given away on the journey, and one began to consider whether the odd-speaking people could quite understand English.

Some such thoughts occurred to John Carteret as he explored the nooks and corners of Linthorp; and he half-wondered that, with all her leanings to the picturesque, Lady Pechford had not forsaken the more newly built residences, and found a dwelling place where she might have been living in a kind of romance.

But Lady Pechford's ideas of the artistic had no tincture of the romantic about them—were simply in connection with taste and refinement; they were of the educated eye rather than of the natural instinct, and were in subjection to her sense of convenience and luxury.

John Carteret, on the contrary, revelled by nature in the picturesque; and so took a lodging in the unfashionable quarter of the town, with a sitting-room looking over the harbor, towards the tall cliff, behind which the sun came up, turning into warm color the gray ruins; or where he might watch, at eventide, the lingering rays of the setting sun quiver in many a flush of shifting light upon the rows of houses, rising tier on tier, until they looked, in the clear atmosphere, more like a painted picture than a real scene.

Then, too, he liked to watch the groups of busy people and marvel at their lives; for there was to him a mystery in how they lived and found a fund of happiness in poor, rough living. He liked to watch the little children, old in their carefulness and rich with a shred of colored rag, or a rough made toy-boat. He liked to hear the hum of voices in earnest business rising up. It did not annoy him: there was a life in it that was telling him something. Something that was in it for the benefit of a great land—the under current that one must study in order to be of use in the world and to float wisely and steadily with the tide.

He wished that his first curacy had been amongst them; the wild, rough men who had weathered out fierce storms at sea; the reckless ones, who had no hopes beyond to-day; the bare-footed, pinched and poverty stricken ones; the careless, merry hearted younglings, who had no thought for the grim future of life, or for the grand future beyond it.

As Lady Pechford had said, there was very little work to be done at St. Botolph's, and all his labors were among the better classes of society—for there were no poor at St. Botolph's: it was merely a chapel of ease and there was no actual necessity for a curate.

But the Reverend Clarendon Wardlaw was a man of good property and liked taking things easily. He enjoyed the sort of life he led at Linthorp; the constant change of society, the arranging of his church services and the perfecting of his choir. Moreover, he was a busy man and believed that he had accomplished great things. His favorite expression was that he had always been in business and intended to die in harness; and neither he nor his congregation would have been surprised had a bishopric been offered to him in acknowledgment of his long and faithful services.

The Reverend Clarendon Wardlaw was pleased with his new curate, though surprised that he had chosen to live near the quay instead of in the fashionable quarter. It was his only possible ground of dissatisfaction; and he felt that, after all, it was but a slight one.

He endeavored to dissuade him from his choice, but John Carteret could not be moved either by Mrs. Wardlaw's or Lady Pechford's representations.

"I must economize," he said to Lady Pechford, "and lodgings are much less expensive in the town."

Lady Pechford could not quite make out whether he was in jest or in earnest; but she did not argue the point further, for there was something about John Carteret that told her it would be useless to do so. So she laughed at his whim, as she called it, and said no more.

So John Carteret took possession of his rooms, and from his high window looked down on the busy world of Linthorp below and felt that his life had begun in earnest; and his eyes resting on the ruins opposite, his thoughts went back to the time when the arches and pillows were unbroken, and the groined roofs in all their beauty; when amongst the men and women who worked there in nobleness and simplicity, there had been one to whom he had labored, even as he hoped to labor, for the people—who had struck his heart strings, in consonance with his duty-loving Anglo Saxon nature, to the praise of the Lord of Hosts, and in a call to men to worship him for the people that, through his paraphrase, they might learn the lessons of Holy Writ.

Nothing lost upon the earth. Through the hundreds of years that have intervened, the worker's spirit has been appreciated—his spirit has communed with the hearts of other master-thinkers, and is ever living. For if once the chain of active thought is set in motion, it finds continual links to carry it on unbroken through illimitable time.

No hand that ever set itself to good has ever wrought in vain. The smallest stone that the weakest has raised from the ground helps to build up the tower of strength that is man's best safeguard on the earth. John Carteret had his part to do. He must put forth his hand to the utmost of its power. If all would do so, the world might be the better for it.

It was a gloomy day; the clouds were heavy, and only the high wild keys of the sea; the waves were rolling up against the sides of the pier, and dashing against the sea-wall—rolling, leaping, or coming in wild sweeps, that suddenly rose up in showers of spray and thundered over with a slow, booming roar, as though the working of the heaving waters was painful and difficult.

Yet, despite the dullness of the weather, people were all astir in the town. John Carteret at his window saw the groups hurrying along the quay—men, women, and all, making their way in one direction.

He went down stairs, and out into the street to see what was the matter.

"They're going to see the vessel that struck on the rocks last night. They say she'll go to pieces with this tide."

John Carteret followed the stream. He did not exactly know why, but a curious impulse led him to look upon the destruction of the vessel. He found the pier thronged with people, who had flocked from all parts: sailors, and perchance the crew of the fated vessel, had assembled to see the end of it. Boys had clambered up on every available point and were running along the top of the wall like squirrels, regardless of the fact that one lurch would send them into the seething waters, from which escape won'd be impossible. Fashionable visitors, too, were there, who had made an effort to come down for the sake of a little excitement.

Lady Pechford, wrapped in a waterproof cloak, stood near one of the embrasures, into which a tall, handsome girl had mounted, in order to obtain a better view of the luckless bark.

"It's quite an excitement for one," said Lady Pechford, as John Carteret came up to her. "There were two of them; they missed their way in the fog last night, and got upon the rocks. One of them has already gone to pieces; you may see the tips of the mast just above the water."

John Carteret looked in the direction to which she pointed; and in the midst of the great leaden billows, he saw the last fragments of the vessel that had so lately sped as a white-winged bird over the waters. Then he looked along the waves to where the other vessel yet beat about, as if striving for life against the breakers.

"She can't last long," said Lady Pechford. And as she spoke, a crack was heard, one of the masts tottered and trembled, and finally fell across the deck.

"Hooray!" shouted the little boys, as though sympathizing with the victors in the strife.

"Horrid little creatures!" said Lady Pechford. "For my part, I feel as if the vessel were alive, and we were watching her death throes."

"They are carrying out the satirist's apothegm, that it is in our natures to rejoice at the misfortunes of others," answered John Carteret.

"Look, look!" exclaimed Lady Pechford, as a muddy stream seemed to pour from the deck. "What is it?"

"It's the grain that was stored in the hold," replied a bystander. "She's nearly gone; the other mast can't hold another minute."

There was a hush among the watchers; they strained their eyes as though they feared the wreck would vanish ere they could see the end.

John Carteret bent forward as eagerly as any one. Wave after wave broke over the dismantled vessel; she turned hither and thither with every fresh shock; her power of resistance was becoming every moment feebler.

No one spoke, no one moved; each gazed steadily over the grey sea that moaned and roared below and ever and anon cast up showers of blinding spray.

At last it came. Another crash and the second mast fell; the vessel filled and sank and only a spar or two indicated the place where she had gone down.

And again another shrill "Hooray!" arose from the boys, clinging about the pier.

And the silence was dispelled and men and women found their voices, and talked and laughed as usual; and the clatter of their footsteps sounded noisily along the stone pavement as they hurried townward.

John Carteret did not speak: there was something jarring and discordant in the life that made itself manifest after the death like hush.

Yet it was perhaps natural; for life and death are so nigh together that the ordinary mind scarce realizes the solemnity of either.

"I wish there was a wreck every day," said the young lady near whom Lady Pechford had been standing, as she gazed down from the pier. "I enjoyed it. I never enjoyed anything so much for a long time. Ah! Mr. Carteret," she said, perceiving him for the first time, "you are as fond of sight seeing as the rest of us. Was it not very exciting?"

"More so than I at all expected, Miss Wardlaw. I had no idea one's sympathies could be so awakened for anything inanimate. There was something quite mournful in it."

"Mournful!" repeated Miss Wardlaw. "I cannot say I thought it mournful. There was no one on board. All the people came off in boats last night. Of course, if any one had been drowning it would have been different. I should have gone home, and tried not to think about it, as one could do no good."

The latter words of her speech grated on John Carteret, even as the sounds of the people dispersing had done; and yet it was human nature again, in another phase—the driving away aught that disturbs or distresses the mind. To face and grapple with fate or sorrow requires a certain kind of divinity.

"You will smile, Miss Wardlaw; but I found myself looking up at the poor vessel as a living, sentient being," said John Carteret. "Every effort she made, every blow that struck her, every creak and shiver, reminded me of a human being in distress; or perhaps I was carrying on a sort of allegory that made it so appear to me. I can quite understand how the old Northern poets came to endow the ships of their heroes with living power; how the good vessel that bore Sir Launcelot to his kingdom was to him a with her master's will, and how the dragon-ships could smite the monsters that rose up to stay their course. But it appears to me that every thing that works in docile harmony with the hand of man has a certain power of life in it; steam, machinery, what you will anything that carries action with it; and the very fact of calling the ship 'she' suggests this idea. In some counties, a railway train is invariably spoken of as the 'he' by the country people, as though 'it' were not applicable to a body moving apparently without a living agency. I think it must be a suggestion of life that underlies their form of speech."

"You must live in a sort of fairy land, Mr. Carteret, with such odd notions," answered Miss Wardlaw. "Are you not afraid of becoming heterodox?"

"Not at all; the deeper one lives to nature, and to the throbs of humanity, the more orthodox one becomes."

Miss Wardlaw did not comprehend his speech, therefore she ans vered——

"I am afraid you are not quite orthodox, Mr. Carteret."

"What is orthodoxy, Miss Wardlaw?"

"Believing everything that there is no doubt about its being right to believe," she replied, promptly.

John Carteret smiled.

"A very comprehensive definition, Miss Wardlaw, if one could apply it. But now are we to dec de upon the everything that is to be included in the list of orthodox things?"

Miss Wardlaw looked up surprised.

"I thought all clergymen knew—that is, that all they read and studied made them understand exactly—what was orthodox and what was not. Even Mr. Smithson was quite orthodox, papa said, only a little vulgar. Mrs. Smithson was, too, for she always agreed with mamma and me."

"Well, then, you must define your views for my edification and then I shall know whether I am orthodox or not, by their agreement with mine."

Miss Wardlaw was perplexed.

"I don't trouble myself about views," she answered. "I believe what papa believes, and what the church believes, and what all sects are right in their belief believe; and therefore, of course, I am orthodox."

And Miss Wardlaw felt she had answered John Carteret with an incontrovertible argument. Perhaps she had, for he made no reply to it; and they walked along the pier in silence—John Carteret's thoughts wandering away to Di, in her ignorant probings after the true, the wonderful and the unseen, with her love for the mysterious, and her odd fancies; and he felt that she was no more ignorant than the girl beside him, tutored as she had been in all the prescribed routine of so-called orthodoxy, withoutout one natural scepticism or thought having been brought to bear on the subject.

Miss Wardlaw had acquired her belief, as she had done her sprightly tales, regular parts of her education, —but without inquiry, without understanding—simply as a matter to be gone through and that did not involve any further progress.

"How the wind blows," said Lady Pechford, as they gained the shelter of the road leading to the upper ground. "What a relief it is to find one's self away from the water. I should not like to be out at sea to-night. I wonder the steamer started for Tarnside."

"Yet there were a great many passengers on board—the deck was crowded," replied Miss Wardlaw.

"People will risk a good deal for pleasure," said John Carteret; "it's the regatta at Tarnside to-morrow."

"Ah, that is the reason! I had quite forgotten the regatta. But I scarcely think even that would induce me to have ventured," returned Miss Wardlaw.

"Besides, the captain would not have started had he apprehended danger. He would not put out to sea yesterday.

"Nevertheless," said Lady Pechford, "one's fears would be the same; but then I am a great coward and have always had a horror of drowning. You will come in to dinner, Mr. Carteret," she added, turning to John Carteret; "seven is my hour—and the Lovells and Welbys are coming. I can't get through the evenings without society. And you will come, too, and bring your music," and she turned to Miss Wardlaw.

"Not to dinner. But I can come in for an hour in the evening."

"Now, you certainly cannot refuse," said Lady Pechford to John Carteret, who had said nothing. "You have always missed hearing Miss Wardlaw sing and you do not know what a treat it is."

"The temptation is great," replied John Carteret; "but I am not sure that I can avail myself of your invitation."

"Nonsense—what excuse can you possibly have? No one is ill in the congregation, and you must have written your sermon, for this is Friday."

"No, I have not."

"Well, you can write it to-morrow, and I shall expect you."

They had mounted the steps and reached the upper ground and were not far from Lady Pechford's door.

"I am afraid I can't promise."

"I will not listen to any excuses."

"But——"

"No—I shall expect you. And now, will you see Miss Wardlaw home?"

"With pleasure."

Lady Pechford looked after Miss Wardlaw and her companion for a moment, before she entered the house.

"Mildred Wardlaw is really a very handsome girl—and she looked particularly well to-day," mused Lady Pechford. "I'm not sure that John could do better, since there's the chance come up of the Clarendon property falling in. The Wardlaws have certainly been very fortunate. I must see what I can keep in the thing in play, until something better turns up. I wish she would not try subjects beyond her range—for any one can see that her forte is not the intellectual—and John Carteret's clever enough to see it. Perhaps it doesn't matter—for men don't care whether girls have any sense or not. He must think her handsome. It's almost a pity that she's fair—for as he's light himself, he would be more likely to take a fancy to some one dark. I wonder if the mythic personage is light or dark! I don't much believe in her—at any rate he's not fretting after her—for he's willing, as far as I can see, to be agreeable to every one. Probably he sees the superiority of the girls here to the rustic beauty—if she is a beauty. And, of course, she can't sing as Miss Wardlaw does—who has had the best instruction—and John Carteret has a good idea of music. Yes, he is to admire her singing. Then, she looks even better at night than she does in the day. Thirty thousand pounds certain at her father's death! And he is decidedly beginning to fail. And this Clarendon property will be quite as much—if not, as report says, a great deal more. I must consider before I throw away the chance. I should like John to marry well. What is he to do if he does not meet with a fortune?"

And Lady Pechford went to dress for dinner.

TO BE CONTINUED.

DEATH OF "THE BISHOP OF BOND STREET."—This gentleman, Mr. William Bishop, so well-known by the sporting world, and resident of Bond street, London, Eng., died on March 16th, at half past nine o'clock, in the 73d year of his age. For forty nine years he carried on business in Bond street, as a gun maker and agent to Westley-Richards, and made himself a host of friends, especially among the aristocratic followers of sport, by his genial, kind-hearted disposition and quaint conversation with regard to men and things. He was best known, perhaps, in connection with "Bishop's Act" relative to the stealing of dogs, and to the last he read with delight and exultation cases in which his efforts in this direction had procured the conviction of wrong doers. Mr. Bishop was a man of most liberal and generous disposition, and on this account, probably, did not prosper much in his business. He had been in a declining state for some time past, and latterly his case was looked upon as hopeless by his medical attendants, and for four days previous to his death his speech left him, but almost to the last he appeared sensible and recognized those about him.

FIGHTING COCKS IN THE OIL REGIONS.—The first cock fight of the season at Titusville, Pa., took place on March 29th, at Bucklan's, between Prof. J. W. Whitney, of Titusville, and Dean Wilson, of Buffalo, in which the former came off victorious, after fighting 14 birds. The main was for $250 a side, and BASE BALL.

THE GRAND OPENING MATCH OF THE SEASON OF 1871.

WEST VS. SOUTH.

THE CHICAGO CLUB VICTORIOUS—THEY GET IN A TIGHT SPOT.

The White Stocking nine of the Chicago Club, which left the Lake City on St. Patrick's day on a tour to New Orleans, duly arrived at the latter city on the 21st of March, where they were received by a deputation of the Lone Star Club and taken to the St. Charles Hotel, their headquarters while in the Crescent City. Three of the nine were left behind at the Junction, but the missing men reached the city in the next train. The weather was promising for a fine field day on the 26th, the day appointed for the match, but on the night of the 25th a thunder storm set in, with heavy showers of rain, and the result was that the field at the base ball park, on Sunday, presented anything but an attractive appearance. Notwithstanding this drawback, so eager were the ball players of the Crescent City to see the new champions of the west play, that fully 2,000 of them went out to the park on Sunday to witness the match. The Lone Stars were in fine condition for play, they having been in good practice for a month previous; besides which they had encountered all the local clubs and whipped them. Indeed, so confident were their friends of their ability to take the shine out of the Western men, that all odds on the White Stockings were promptly accepted by the Star crowd. On the arrival of the contestants at the Park the grounds were found to be in such a poor condition, and so muddy and slushy, that the in-field had to be laid out fresh, the old one being partially covered with water. As it was, the best was bad enough, as there was no fence behind the catcher, and all passed balls went into a pool of water, thus soon rendering the ball soggy and unfit for successful fielding or batting operations; but as it was as fair for one side as the other, the difficulties of the position were patiently submitted to and the game was played to a close amidst the utmost excitement, the close character of the contest eliciting the deepest interest in the proceedings. The White Stockings were in good condition for play when they came on the field, but just as the game had commenced a telegram was received by McAtee, announcing the death of his brother, and, as a matter of course, he became in no condition for doing justice to himself, one result being his failure to hold several important balls at first base, by which errors the Lone Stars were enabled to obtain the only runs they secured in the game, two dropped fly balls being among the most important of the errors he committed. Some delay was occasioned by a difference of opinion in reference to the rules under which the game was to be played. In the absence of the new rules of the game—which J. H. Haynie, of the Fashion Club, Chicago, had prevented from being published from Nov. 30th, 1870 to April, 1871—the Lone Stars demanded that the game should be played under the printed rules of 1870, and properly so, too, as none other were at command, and no umpire was therefore posted in the new rules. It will thus be seen, that at the very opening of the season trouble has been caused in umpiring from the delay in printing the new rules to be published. The Stars alleged that the new rules were not legally in force until published in book form. This is a mistake. The amended rules went into force on the night of the adjournment of the Convention of 1870, and they have been in force ever since, but owing to the absence of the printed form of the amendments they have been in a measure practically inoperative. The only correct rules of the game which can be published are those endorsed by the Chairman of the Committee of Rules who reported the amendments made. This has always been the law since the organization of the National Association. NEXT season the only rules which will be offered will be those certified to by the Chairman of the two Committees of Rules of the two National Associations. This season the only official rules will be those certified to by Mr. Chadwick, Chairman of the Committee of Rules of 1870.

THE GAME.

The Chicago nine went to the bat first, but they drew a blank, as did the Lone Stars in their first effort. In the second innings the Whites managed to secure one run, and again "whitewashing" their opponents, they took a leading position in the game. In the third innings the Chicagos added two more to their score, and had the chances of the pitching of Zettlein been all taken, the Stars would have drawn a blank for the third time in succession. In this innings the Chicagoes sent in McAtee, who by a good hit made his base, but was forced out at second by a hit of Hodes to short. Hodes, by another good hit, got his first, sending King to second. Wood then retired on a foul fly to Hastings. Simmons hit a good one, got to his first, giving King and Hodes each a base; Treacy came in, and after two foul tips, either of which should have been taken by Hastings, hit a spiteful one to centre field, making two bases, and bringing King and Hodes both home. Duffy then retired at first by a ball weakly batted by him to Tracy at short.—Chicago two runs. To the Lone Stars, Redon, the first striker, got a life from a muffed foul by Hodes, and then went to first by a muffed fly by Duffy. Condon batted well to right field, earned his base, sending Redon to second. Wright then got to first on Zettlein's slow handling of the ball, Redon and Condon getting each a base, and scoring a run on a wild pitch. Oby, after striking three times, got to his second on another wild pitch by the charmer, which brought in Wright. Hastings hit a spiteful one to Pinkham, who overthrew it to first, bringing both Oby and Hastings home. Tracy flied out to Treacy. Leonard, after a muffed tip, got to first on a wild throw from Pinkham to McAtee, Scott going out on a fly taken by McAtee. Tebault then hit one to Pinkham, who sent it in good style to McAtee; he failing to hold it, Tebault got his base, and Leonard came home, Redon retiring on a foul fly to Hodes, leaving the game standing 6 to 3 in favor of the Lone Stars, with the crowd fearfully excited, many cheering until they were hoarse. The betting market, of course, fluctuated in its rates, and Lone Star stock was in temporary demand. Now it was that the battle began in earnest. The Chicagos realized the fact that they had work to do, and they went in to do it. First, they deposed McAtee, and sent Simmons to first base in his place, and the way that old Gotham player filled the position raised him high in the estimation of his colleagues, Simmons bearing off the fielding honors of the match. The next four innings were played in regular nip and tuck style, neither side adding a single run to their score up to the close of the seventh innings, at which time the figures still showed the Lone Stars to be in the van by the totals of 6 to 3. The Chicagos now briefly consulted together, and realizing the absolute necessity of their doing something to avoid defeat in their very first match, they went into the bat in their eighth innings bent upon wielding the ash with more effect than they had been able to do the previous four innings. In this important eighth innings the "Charmer" led off with an earned base, and he commenced jumping around the base soon after starting for second, with Woods yelling like a Camanche Indian; Hastings threw to Oby very badly, and Zettlein made his third, McAtee then retired on a fly to Tracy; King hit to Wright, who failed to stop it, got his base and Zettlein came home; Hodes earned his base by a good hit, King going to second; Wood hit to Oby, who let the ball pass him, and King came home; Simmons, by a poor hit to Leonard, was retired at first, Hodes coming home from second by a wild throw of Condon's to Wright; Treacy then sent a fly to Scott, who muffed it and went to second, Wood getting home; Duffy hit to Condon, who, forgetting to step on the base with the ball, threw it very wildly to Wright, the result being that Treacy and Duffy both went home; Pinkham struck out, leaving the game standing 9 to 6 in favor of Chicago. The Stars, however, still had an innings left to pull up in, and they opened play at the bat as if they meant mischief, two men being on the bases with no men out, when the finest point of play made in the game occurred in this way. Treacy led off by a good hit, earning his base and stealing second, Woods muffing Hodes' throw. Leonard to first on called balls. Scott then hit to Woods, who touched Leonard as he passed, throwing the ball to Simmons, retiring Scott; Simmons, in turn, seeing Treacy, rushing in from third, delivered the ball hot to Hodes, who touched Treacy, ending the innings with a very fine triple play. The crowd did not comprehend the position of affairs at first, but afterwards, when the beauty of the play was realized, the White Stockings came in for their due share of praise, especially Simmons. The Stars now almost despaired of the game, but still they went into their ninth innings to do their best, and again whitewashing the Chicagos, received the like compliment in return, and they finally retired from the game a defeated party by a score of 9 to 6, a result the Southerners had no reason to be ashamed of. In addition to the fine triple play made by the White Stockings, they made three double plays, and throughout the game displayed a far greater degree of fielding skill than did their nine of 1870 in the spring of that year, when playing with the same club. On the part of the southern players, Treacy, at left field, by some beautiful running catches, showed himself the superb base ball player that he has been credited to be in past seasons. On the Chicago side, Duffy guarded short in his usual masterly way, while Pinkham, at third, was all that could be desired. His throwing to first was very accurate and swift. Hodes surprised all his friends by his play behind the bat, having but one passed ball during the game, notwithstanding the ground at his position was like a swamp. He is a very graceful catcher, throws to the bases with accuracy and swiftness and seems entirely in earnest. Wood watched his base in that effective way that has made him famous. He has entire control of the men this year and everything works harmoniously. King was not given many chances to distinguish himself at centre, but took excellent care of everything that came in his direction. But the old charmer, Zettlein, was the great object of interest. Hundreds of those in attendance came with the single object of witnessing the swift pitching of the late Atlantic player, and they were not sent home disappointed. Zettlein was in the very best humor, and the way he sent the ball into Hodes was a matter of astonishment to the batsmen of the Star organization. As will be seen by the score, they only succeeded in hitting him for four bases, and it must be understood that these Lone Stars boys are no slouches with the ash. Several of the nine are very heavy batsmen, while none of them can be denominated weak. The fielding and batting of the Stars was very fine throughout the game. In Leonard they have a very effective pitcher, and one liable to bother the batting skill of the best of the professional nines. Their first baseman, Condin; short stop, Treacy; third baseman, Wright, and left fielder, Scott, are surpassed in their several positions by few players. Scott Hastings, their catcher, recently of the Rockford Forest City, is one of the best men in that position in the United States. The game was very satisfactorily umpired by Mr. V. C. Bertel, of the R. E. Lee Club, of N. O. The following is the full score:—

A SPLENDID JUNIOR MATCH,

THE SILVER STARS IN THE FIELD.

A great many people make the mistake of supposing that there are no crack players except the recognized experts of the amateur and professional clubs, but if these people could only see some of our crack junior players in a match they would realize the fact that the juniors this season will present some of the best fielding likely to be witnessed. On the 25th ult., the Silver Stars opened play for the season on the grounds known as the Hollow, located between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth streets and Eleventh avenue, and the following is the score of the remarkable game they played on this occasion. A large crowd were present and the correctness of the score can be vouched for. It was the finest junior game ever p'ayed.

NOTICE TO AMATEUR CLUBS.—The Secretary of the National Association, Mr. Uhlhoff, of the Pastime Club, of Baltimore, sends us the following letter, to which the special attention of the Amateur clubs named are called:—

BALTIMORE, March 31st, 1871.

FRANK QUEEN, Ed. N. Y. CLIPPER.—DEAR SIR.—Will you have the kindness to insert notice in your paper to the following effect:—Secretaries of the following clubs will please send their addresses to me as soon as possible, viz:—New York city—Eagle, Knickerbocker, Athenian, Gotham, Excelsior, Brooklyn—Alpha, Harmonic, Resolute, Atlantic, Enterprise, Excelsior, Osceola, Star, Oriental, Greenpoint. New York state—Fleetwood, Tremont; Spartan, Hamestraw; Clipper, Ilion; Rosehill, Fordham; Niagara, Buffalo; Cornell University, Ithaca; Central City, Syracuse; Flour City, Rochester, New Jersey—Champion, Jersey City; Amateur, Newark; Resolute, Elizabeth; Bergen, South Bergen. Pennsylvania—Equity, Philadelphia; Olympic, Philadelphia; Williams College, Williamsport, Massachusetts—Harvard, Cambridge; Lowell, Boston; Fairmount, Hartford; Keans rr, Stoneham Swans, Baltimore.

Resp'y, J. H. UHLHOFF, Sec. Nat. Ass. A. B. B. P.

Address—No 145 McElderry's Wharf, Baltimore, Md.

THE PYTHIAN CLUB, of the College of Arts, and the Woodlands, of the Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges, Kentucky Drive city, played a game at Lexington on March 25th, the former scoring 75 to 28.

NOTES AND GOSSIP.

Mr. Price, Secretary of Forest City Base Ball Club, of Rockford, was in Troy on the 30th of March, looking up players for his club. Fisher, of last year's Haymaker nine, and Ham, of the Putnams, signed agreements to play with them, and both started for Rockford on the 31st. Waugh is a good man for them and he wants a "posish." The Haymakers are practicing every day.....The Putnams are getting a strong nine together for this season.....Geo. Hall will join the Eckford nine, unless the Forest City Club accept his terms.....The Eckfords have secured a good short stop in Holdsworth, of last year's Union nine.....The Silver Stars have secured the vacant space known as the "Hollow," located between 11th avenue and the North river, as their grounds for the season, and they will put a strong junior nine in the field..... The secretary of the Mutual Club, Aleck Davidson, has resigned his position, and he is now no longer an officer of that club. That efficient member of the board of directors, too, Jimmy Hayes, has also resigned. How is it that such good men as these are allowed to leave the club? Mr. McConnell is spoken of as the next secretary. He is fully experienced and is one of the oldest members of the club.....An interesting question asked by some of the delegates to the November Convention is, what has become of the funds of the late National Association?..... The Jaspers, of Manhattan College, will place a strong nine in the field this season; as also the Rose Hill Club, of St. John's College, Fordham. The Jasper nine will include T. Martin, pitcher; Sullivan, catcher; Grady, 1st base; Lawler, second base; Geer, third base; Meaik, short stop; Brown, left field; Donlin, right field; R. Carroll, left field and captain..... The Faston club—the Neptunes—will present a strong co-operative nine this season, including Berry, Fulmer, Devlin, and Breen, of Philadelphia. They are going for the Resolutes and Champions first.....The Olympics have organized a team to play against their salaried professional nine. The "amateur" nine in question will include Reach, Robinson, Gibney, Hurley, Burroughs and Kulp, and those amateurs, Nick Young—the model Secretary—French, Norton, the ladies pet, and Urell. Then there is Barron, Stearns and White, to assist.....Harry Wright gave his nine a little field practice on the 23d ult., and, having the Harrards as opponents they had to restore a defeated party. The Harrards, however, had Spaulding on their side to pitch, with McVey to catch, and the Boston nine excuse their defeat on this ground. They had better look sharp after that nine of Bush's, or the first thing they know will be a defeat. Archy knows how to captain a nine, and he is getting a splendid team in training. The Stars will be the first victims—so Archy says. Sterling, of the Stars, however, does not view the subject in that light. .....The Olympic and Boston nines are to meet early in May. First, the Boston nine will try to wax the Olympics in Washington, and then the Olympics will try to achieve a victory over their opponents in Boston, after which they will both meet for a grand tussle in Brooklyn. Sweasy thinks he can whip the Boston crowd with the Olympic amateur team. What a crowd there will be to see them when they meet.....There is quite a feeling of rivalry between the Excelsiors and Stars this season thus far. While both have been anxious to meet on the field and settle things in a square fight, one has been afraid and the other dare not. This season, however, George Flanly is going to get a team together purposely to whip the Stars, while Sterling is quietly at work getting up a nine which he says will give the Excelsiors ten runs and beat them..... The Eckfords are ready. President Ray, of the Eckford Club, writes us word that the Eckford nine is now ready for work, and that the nine will include the following strong team of players:—Hicks, c.; Martin, p.; Andrew Aillson, 1st b.; Swandell, 2d b.; Nelson, 3d b.; Holdsworth, s. s.; Gedney, l. f.; Hall, c. f.; R. Hunt, r. f. This is one of the strongest nines that Eckfords have placed in the field for some years.....The Pastimes, of Baltimore, have to look out for a new ground, the field they have occupied for the past ten years having been devoted to city building lots. Their nine for 1871 will be as follows—Barrett, McDonnell, Loomis, Kelley, Freylein, Buck, Doyle, Chenowith and Bailey. This is a strong team.

ANOTHER VOICE FROM ROCHESTER.—The communication from a correspondent concerning the condition of base ball matters in Rochester N. Y., recently published, has brought the following from another admirer of our national pastime there, and it is to be hoped that his remarks may have a salutary effect in stirring the ball tossers into action:—

FRANK QUEEN.—DEAR SIR.—I see an item in the CLIPPER this week about "Ball Playing in the Flour City," and I must agree with your correspondent, for the game is dead here; but why it should be so is a mystery to many citizens. It is true that some of the crack players have been "mobbed" by the professionals. But we have some of the stand-bys left. There is some splendid material here, if there was only a head to lead them. Hoy, the crack pitcher of the old Excelsiors, and late pitcher of the Olympics of Washington, is here, and one time considered the "boss" pitcher in western New York. Hoy and Porter would make a splendid team; John McKevlie, the well known short stop; Campbell, a tearer on first, Beard and Gil again, third and second base respectively; that covers the infield. In the outfield, a centre fielder; Charlie McKevlie, a rising youngster, in the right and Jones, of the Knicks, in left. I think that if this lot of ball players would only don their uniforms they would make it interesting for any amateur club in the country. If our wise Aldermen will only let the boys play on the square, the forces of one week would be exceedingly pleased. I think the boys will organize soon, and when they do they will be supported in their endeavors to uphold the national game by all lovers of the pastime.

Yours, etc., A LOVER OF THE GAME.

ATHLETIC, OF BROOKLYN.—This club recently elected the following officers for the year ensuing:—President, John Senior; Vice-President, Wm. Lisle, Jr.; Recording Secretary, Edward Martin; Corresponding Secretary, Robert V. Gardiner; Treasurer, H. P. Stamford; Directors, Wm. B. Heuson, Wm. H. Tilton, Wm. F. Tooker, M. B. Maguire and James Proctor; Delegates, John Senior and Geo. Starr. This club had a good record last year. Their nine will be the same as that of last season, with probably one or two exceptions. They will occupy the Capitoline grounds, and intend to go for that "championship" at the earliest opportunity.

ESSEX VS. SEVERN.—These clubs played a game at Annapolis, Md., on March 25th, the midshipmen winning again by the following score:—

INNINGS.	1st	2d	3d	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th
Essex	3	0	7	4	7	4	0	0	3	—28
Severn	0	3	1	1	1	1	4	0	2	—10

Fly catches.—Burns 2, Schwenk, 1; Baker, 1; Downes, 1—4. Ritter, 1; Hibben, 1; Schewarare, 1—3. Time of game, 2.30. Umpire, J. Price.

TREMONT, OF BOSTON.—A meeting of this club was held on March 22d, at which the following officers were chosen for the present year:—President, J. Corcoran; Secretary, F. Bearce; Treasurer, J. Sullivan; Directors, D. Riley and W. Stone; Captain, T. Fay. This club played 15 match games last season, coming off victorious in 13, they scoring 439 runs to their opponents' 238.

TRENTON CLUB.—This New Jersey club is officered as follows for the present season:—President, Judge Alfred Reed; Vice President, Mercer Beasley; Secretary, Henry C. Freese; Treasurer, William H. Grant; Captain, William Gummere; Scorer, James G. Reed; Directors, William H. Barton, Henry Speeler, Mercer Beasley, William Gummere and E. Moore.

THE DAUNTLESS CLUB, of Harrisburg, Pa., recently elected the following officers:—President, F. W. Ebel; Vice President, E. L. Letdford; Secretary, W. A. Croft, Jr.; Treasurer, P. E. Linn; Directors, Wm. Kramer, Wm. Peters, Chas. Fleck, Wm. Fleck, Fred. Simmons, William Hummel and P. G. Britsch; Captain, F. H. Simmons.

THE RETURN GAME between the Confidence club, of New Rochelle, and the David's Island club, of David's Island, N. Y. H., was played on the grounds of the former on March 29th, and resulted in a victory for the Confidence by a score of 46 to 30.

GEORGE WRIGHT and C. H. Gould have gone into partnership as dealers in base ball goods, and clubs and players wanting anything in this line, to whom Boston is a convenient market, are referred to their card in another column.

PEDESTRIANISM.

CHAMPIONSHIP RACE IN ENGLAND.

RIDLEY DEFEATS FLEET.

On March 11th, the great race for the one mile championship and £50 a side, between J. S. Ridley, of Gateshead, and J. Fleet, of Manchester, Eng., took place at the Gateshead Borough grounds, and proved by far the most important match that has been decided in the north of England since Johnny White and Jim Rowan ran their celebrated race at the old Victoria grounds, Newcastle. As we have frequently given Fleet's record, we will not now re-produce it. As his opponent's have never been published, however, we herewith present them:—J. Stephen Ridley was born at Gateshead on July 29, 1845. He stands 5 ft. 8¾ in. in height, and when trained generally turns the scale at 6 st. 7 lbs. His performances as a runner previous to this race were nothing extraordinary, although his friends have always had a high opinion of his ability at a long distance. He commenced in 1865, by defeating G. Corbett, of Gateshead, in a 1,200 yards race, at Fenham Park grounds, for £20, and after being shelved for a couple of years, came out during 1867, and won Mr. J. Cooper's £25 half-mile handicap. At the Royal Oak Park grounds, Manchester, but a few weeks later, he was beaten by C. Smith, of Aston, at the same grounds, in a similar competition. Early in 1868 he was defeated by P. Hewitt, of Sheffield, in a half-mile race, at Hyde Park, Sheffield, for £50 a side. The following year he won the two mile handicap at the Royal Patent Gymnasium, Edinburgh; and in 1870, at the Powder Hall grounds, in the same city, he followed up this success by winning a one mile handicap. On April 9th, 1870, he won T. Hayes' gold belt in a one mile sweepstakes, at City grounds, Manchester, beating W. Lang, of Manchester, P. Stapleton, of Mossley, C. Smith, of Aston, and J. Coney, of Deptford. Time, 4 min. 30 sec. A month or two later in the same year, however, he was beaten by Rafferty, of Droyisdon, in a half-mile handicap, for £100, at the City grounds, Manchester; and on Dec. 24th, 1870, off the scratch, won Messrs. Stirling, Guthrie and Thompson's mile handicap, at Gateshead Borough Gardens. For the present match he trained under the care of G. Reed, of Newcastle.

THE RACE.

At half past three o'clock the gates were thrown open for admission to the event of the afternoon, but by that time something like 6,000 people had assembled at the door, and the crushing and squeezing in order to obtain an entrance was something terrible. Although four gates were put "on" and admissions were made very rapidly, there did not seem to be much effect made on the dense mass of the crowd. At length a large number of people, tired of waiting outside, determined to make an entrance by scaling the boarding, and successfully accomplished the feat. Once within the enclosure the enormous attendance was something really astounding. There were certainly not less than from 12,000 to 15,000 spectators. The Manchester bookmakers were early on the ground in good numbers, and so also were the Tattersalls men, and the betting went on exceedingly brisk until the actual start took place. Before moving from Newcastle a lot of business had been done at 6 to 4 on Fleet, but when the price was offered on the ground it was so eagerly packed up that the Manchester party drew in a little, and offered 5 to 4 on their champion. These odds were also freely taken by the supporters of the north countryman, and shortly afterwards one of Ridley's backers offered a level "pony" that the Gateshead man won. He was at once accommodated, but at the finish there was such a rush of public money for Ridley that he went to the start first favorite at 5 to 4 on him. At 5 minutes past 5 o'clock Ridley, accompanied by Reed, his trainer, made his appearance in the ring, and white so fashionable with the champions of the north, and, of course, came in for a most enthusiastic demonstration. Fleet, attended by Johnson, his trainer, followed a moment or two afterwards, and was also warmly received. The course was in splendid going order, the management having taken particular pains with it for the previous three weeks, and being triangular in shape, with a circumference of 605 yards, it had to be covered twice and about a half to complete the required distance. When the men stripped the splendid condition into which they had been brought was observable, and upon the question of fitness it was almost impossible to choose between them. The competitors had unanimously elected Mr. W. Oldham as referee and starter, and the ground having been cleared after some difficulty by an efficient staff of police, the men were placed at the mark, and at twelve minutes past five o'clock the race commenced, amidst most painful excitement. Ridley, on the side next the rails, at once dashed to the front, and with a lead of a yard made play at a killing pace for the first 150 yards. Approaching the first or Gateshead turn the home man drew further ahead, and with an advantage of four yards, crossed over and took the inside track immediately in front of Fleet. This lead the Gateshead Champion maintained past the stands, and on to the quarter-mile post. Time, 1min. 1sec. They approached the first starting place, at the Felling Corner, Ridley spurted, and added another yard to his command, but Fleet made an effort, and quickly got up to within two yards of his opponent. Ridley, however, drew away again, and passed the half mile post six yards in advance of Fleet. Time, 2 min. 7 sec. As the men shot along the top stretch of the course the difference in their styles was something surprising. Ridley went along in a long, raking stride, which carried him swiftly over the ground, without much apparent exertion; while, on the other hand, Fleet appeared to take two steps to his opponent's one. Entering the straight for the second time the distanced man led by full eight yards, and in the run to the stands urged on by the shouts of his partisans, drew out another couple of yards. Fleet, immediately on rounding into the back stretch, put the steam on, and reduced the gap to five yards, but Ridley, going quite fresh, replied by a spurt, and dashed past the three-quarter mile post a dozen yards in front of the Manchester champion. Time, 3 min. 12 sec. The last effort appeared to have taken nearly everything out of Fleet, for he dropped further and further into the rear, and Ridley, still running with unflinching gameness, led along the top flat 25 yards in advance. The excitement of the spectators then knew no bounds, and leaping over the rails in large numbers, it took the management and the police all their time to keep the running track clear of these frantic onlookers. Immediately after entering the straight for the third and last time the race was virtually over, for Fleet was thoroughly beaten, and staggering, fell into the arms of one of his friends, and shaking his hands above his head in great grief, passed through the tape an easy winner. Time for the mile, 5 min. 20 sec., which, considering that the men had a strong wind against them for nearly half the distance, was very fast.

A PROMINENT PROMENADER of London county, Va., is credited with having walked 21,288 miles in Europe, Central America and Mexico, and he proposes to continue his perambulations until he has walked 25,000.

SNOW SHOEING IN CALIFORNIA.

A correspondent forwards us the following particulars of a race in snow shoes which took place near Jamison City, Cal., on March 12th:—

It was for a purse of $200 to the winner, and a Citizen's purse of $50 to the second man. The course selected was three miles in length, having an irregular descent of sixteen hundred feet, one part having an uprise a hundred yards long, which necessitated the racers to remove their shoes and carry them up. It was a beautiful day. The morning opened with a slight crust upon the snow, but the first beams of the sun dissolved that, and by eleven o'clock, the time appointed for starting, the snow had become soft and wet, thus preventing very fast time. The runners were Chris. Keenan, Frank Surratt, Louis Caristopher and Chas. Hanson. At the signal all started in fine style, Keenan and Surratt gaining rapidly for about a thousand yards, when Surratt, who was slightly ahead of Keenan, broke a shoe in passing by a tree and came down, also throwing Keenan, who had no time for turning out; the latter also broke a shoe, and they were virtually out of the race. Hanson was also piled up on them, but was soon on his shoes again, while Christopher, turning in time, passed them beautifully, coming between the poles in ten minutes and thirty seconds, winning the purse; Hanson was fifteen seconds behind and took the smaller purse. Experts, of which many were present, think that with snow and shoes in good order, the race could be made in seven minutes. Everything passed off with the best feeling and all parties repaired to town, and passed the evening in convivial sociality—in short, they made "a night of it."

PICKING UP STONES.—At the Aston Cross Grounds, near Birmingham, Eng., on March 11th, J. Coleman and J. Mountjoy contended in a match to pick up 100 stones, one yard apart, Coleman to walk and Mountjoy to run. At the signal both men started on their tasks, Coleman pitching his longest distance threes, Mountjoy commencing at the second and picking up his nearest stones. Coleman, at first starting, was a little shifty in his style, but improved, and was in fine form. Mountjoy ran in his easy style, but when he had picked up his 82 stones he gave signs of distress, but quickly rallied and again got to work. Coleman, however, eventually won by picking up his 100 to Mountjoy's 96.

A FOUR MILE walking match for £15 a side took place at the Prince of Wales Grounds, Bow, London, on March 11th, between J. Hurley and G. Perry, the latter winning by 20 yards in 32:52.

FATAL PUGILISTIC ENCOUNTER.—At the Thames police court, London, Eng., recently, Henry Payne, a stout lad of sixteen summers, was brought before the sitting magistrate, on remand, charged with killing Thomas Ridler, aged fourteen, in a pugilistic encounter. It appears that a few days prior to the event of the lad's death, the boys, who were neighbors quarrelled and the deceased, who was stated to be a brave and plucky little fellow, challenged the prisoner, two years his senior and his superior in strength, to fight. They fought several rounds near their own home, and in the last the prisoner fell heavily on his adversary, and with his knee on his chest. The unfortunate deceased was picked up lifeless and carried home, but was sent to the London Hospital, where, on his arrival, he was found to be dead. A post mortem examination was made of the remains, which showed the only external mark to be a black eye. There was a clot of blood on the left side of the brain, which was the cause of death. The prisoner, in his defense, said he fought the deceased fairly and took no foul advantage of him. The deceased struck him first, and was so determined on a fight that he had his hair cut short to enable him to fight better. They had a round first in a confined place and then agreed to go to Bowfields and finish the affair. The magistrate committed the prisoner for trial for manslaughter.

FISHING WITH HOOK AND LINE.—A neatly printed little book of sixty-four pages, bearing the above title, has just been issued from the press of Thomas O'Kane, publisher, 130 Nassau street, this city. It is a re-publication of Frank Forrester's well written work, and is an excellent manual for amateur anglers, giving useful instruction in the proper method of using the rod and line, and containing interesting descriptions of fishes and their habits, preparation of baits, etc.

THE GAME OF CHESS.

CHESS JOURNAL TOURNEY.—By advance sheets kindly forwarded us, we learn that the Problem Tourney of the Dubuque C. J., has now reached No. 44. We have run through the last batch of 2-moves, and selected No. 30, "Anguis in herba," which we think very meritorious, for our next week's Enigma. We shall look with interest for the author. We believe No. 31, "Heathen Chinee, No. 3," to be faulty.

CITY OF LONDON C. C. TOURNEY.—Our latest advices gave the following dozen as those still existing of the 48 originally arrayed in the lists:—CLASS A. Mongr; Potter, Shadbourne; De Vere, Harper. CLASS B.—Van der Velde, Johns; Fenton, Bearne; Rudderforth, Blunt. Among the names hitherto unknown in this country, Mr. Potter is decidedly noticeable. We have for next week a very handsome victory of his over the formidable Mr. Blackburne.

MONTREAL VS. QUEBEC.—The telegraphic chess match between these two Canadian cities, which has been unexpectedly protracted because of the ill health of one of the principal players, was brought to a termination on the evening of March 27th, in favor of Montreal, by a score of five to four, with three draws. The Peoples' Telegraph Company generously gave the free use of their wires for the match.

Note (a) is faulty. If P × E, Black does not play R to K Kt 8, as that would admit the counter reply of Kt to B 5; but to these give mate in five moves, in this way:—

31..P × R	Q × R P +	35..K home (best)	R +
32..K Kt sq	R +	36..Kt inter	R × Kt +
33..K B sq (a)	Q R 8 +	37..K × Q, and
34..K B 2	Q R 7 +	mates in two.

(a) Kt to Kt 2 (or B), if Kt to Kt 4, mate in five; Q to R 6; 34..K to B 2 best, R × Kt +, etc.

(B)

33..Q inter, R × Q +; 34..Kt × R, Q to Kt 6, etc.

PAGE 101.

There is some error here—no mate is possible. [A true bill, we guess. We laid little stress on our inability to solve the position; for had we not the great authority of Loewenthal, in his magazine, Vol. II, No. 25, July, 1862, p. 206? There the position is accorded the full honor of a diagram. This was one of the very last selections for the book; and the position, coupled with Herr L.'s note (a), and the actual termination, seemed too nice a bit to loose.—MIRON.]

PAGE 103.

If v. d. Lasa plays 28..Q to K sq +; 29..Kt to K 6 K to Kt sq, White would give mate in five, e. g.:—

30..Q to Kt 3 +	Q to Kt 3	32..Q × B +	R inter
31..Q-Kt 8 +	B inter	33..Q × R +,	34..Mates.

PAGE 108.

There is no mate from the diagram. Add to the game:—

21..R × B +	P × R	29..R to Q sq +	K to his 5
22..Q × P +	K-Q 4	White mates in two.

[I have tried in vain to recall the source whence I obtained this partie.—MIRON.]

Introductory Overture.

MONDAY, April 3d, '71.

THIS is Holy Week, and we are supposed to be on our very best behavior from now until next Sabbath. Consequently, managers know how it is themselves, and will not be shocked should a succession of empty seats stare them in the face during the closing nights of the Lenten term. With the opening of the Easter holidays, an improvement in business will no doubt manifest itself, and a festive season may be looked for, beginning with the great demonstration by the Germans, on Monday next, in honor of the triumph of the Prussians in their war with France.....April came in like a roaring lion, bringing with it rain, hail, snow and blow, and showing us that "winter yet lingers in the lap of spring." But as "April showers bring forth May flowers," let us rejoice that the rude bluster of March has its quietus made; and April, like a spoiled coquet, now smiling, now weeping, has taken its place. Yes! the 1st of April is celebrated for its development of practical jokers and a national exposition of fools. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather on the opening of the fourth month, those parties who delight in sportive tricks were around with their bundles of stone, red hot pennies, fraudulent pocket books, and the various other devices which enable them to have a jolly good time at the expense of the innocent and verdant wayfarer. Although we expressed it forcibly on "Our Jim" that he might be subjected to humiliation, derision and scorn at the hands of unprincipled "hibinders," as he calls them, yet he declared that he feared no evil. On that very day, however, a package by express came to the office for the unfortunate boy (it looked like a money package), marked $125, which was the cause of standing in favor on the books of the "Wareagated Show." His eyes beamed with delight as he glanced at the "precious treasure thou art mine." "What's the damage?" asked the lad, as he drew forth a large but consumptive-looking pocket book. "Two-fifty," was the reply. What with the contents of the pocket book and what he could borrow in the office, James succeeded in satisfying the demands of the messenger, and paying it over the latter took his departure, while the smiling James began to carefully open the package. Its hidden mysteries revealed nothing but a snugly tied-up package of brown paper and a line saying "Beware of the dog—April first!" James took the first train for the "Wareagated," having a return ticket still left. We will now make a couple of original verses of machine poetry, drawn out by the advent of

APRIL.

The balmy days have come—
From cold we're a reprieve—
And soon the show folks and the trees
Will all begin to leave.

To all who start away
We hope there may be reason
To say that April but commenced
What is a-bril-liant season.

These little scraps look easy enough to make, but, if you have the courage to attempt the fabrication of the same, your ignorance and unfitness for the occupation of a rhyming poet will no doubt at once convince you that you have mistaken your vocation.....T. W. Robertson's last play was produced at Wallack's Theatre for the first time during the past week, but from the lack of enthusiasm manifested on the interesting occasion, this new "birth" may be said to have been still-born. The parties are doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances."....A short time ago a celebrated actress played a star engagement here, and during its progress a couple of friends, while discussing theatrica's in general, had the following dialogue in reference to this lady:—

"Say, Bill, where was you last night? I called, but you was out."

"Yes, I had a free pass, and I went to see the great Seebach. I tell you, she's a stunner."

"Big thing, hey?"

"Yer better believe; and, what's more, she's got the biggist repertoire of any woman on the stage; yer ought to see her."

"Is that so? Biggest repertoire, hey? Well, I thought they had 'em pretty hefty in the 'Black Crook,' but if she's got a bigger one I'll go to-night if it takes my bottom dollar."

We can follow the illicit intentions of this nefarious youth no farther.....Probably there is not a profession that is so patient in the accepting of a most pernicious habit as the theatrical. The habit we refer to is that of an actor demanding an encore of a song act, or dance, or song. In the matter of the repetition of the dance and song it is often particularly tiresome to the performer and sometimes to a great portion of the audience, as for instance when a clique of the performer's friends (!) raise such a racket as demands the re-appearance of the artist. It seems a cruelty to the actor and actress to make them repeat their song sometimes three or four times, and can hardly be called a compliment, since it might carry with it the impression that the act did not give satisfaction in the first place, and that the audience had determined to have it repeated until done perfectly. Bryants' Minstrels, when they were at 472 Broadway, had a notice on the bills that there "would positively be no repetition of any song or dance;" and the audience that frequented that establishment were well satisfied with the arrangement. A grieved faker, who has suffered greatly in this way, has just inven ted a "piece of poetic poetry in rhyme" on this subject, as "our Jim" would say, which is to the point, and which we herewith present for the benefit of all concerned:—

THE CRUELTY OF ENCORES.

Pray, good public, permit a fake a word to write,
A word about a nuisance that is growing every night;
That beast, the audience, does behave so stupidly, I vow,
And it's behavior's growing worse, p'raps I'd best tell you how.
I sing a song, perhaps I dance, when sudden comes a clatter
That one would think the house a fire, or something great the matter—
No, not at all, they only want, like little Twist, some more,
And I, of course, to please them, must respond to the encore—
No matter how I'm feeling, whether sick, or gay, or sad,
I must repeat my song or dance; by Jove, it makes me mad.
Now mark the difference—I go to, we'll say, the neighboring bar,
I call for whiskey, and the man will pass me out the jar:
I smack my lips when I have drunk, then pass the money o'er,
I then cry aloud: "By Gum, that's fine! Bring me, boy, here, encore!"
Then seize the bottle and the glass and one more drink I pour.
If for the last I do not pay, he'll kick me out the door;
And so with tailors, hatters, or with any other trade—
You'll find if you "repeat the dose," the second must be paid.
The people say "With us its diff'rent than it is with you—
Your repetitions nothing cost, while all of ours they do."
Oh, that's true! I will listen, now, I'll answer that same plea:
To cultivate my voice it many a dollar has cost me—
The strain upon it from encores, of course, you'll see is double,
And p'raps may make me lose it—(beg 'm in a peck of trouble:—
In dancing, you'll admit that I for shoes must pay the piper,
And one night's dancing wears them more than walking all the day;
And then, besides, my acts grow old by being seen so much,
So I'm obliged to buy new dances, acts, and songs and music,
All these combined, I think, must show, besides the being bored,
I do lose money, plenty, too, each time I am encored.
So this I say, if people want see each thing twice, why then
Let them go to Wallack's or Booth, and not attend my theatre.

.....There is, probably, no set of men who appreciate a kindness more than actors do, nor is there any class more deserving. We were "walking in the twilight," the other day, with a Thespian friend, when he asked us to stop a moment while he stepped into a little cobbler's shop. From our position outside we could see our friend as he handed to the humble shoey an envelope, and when he came forth again we ventured to ask him, in our usually impudent way, what the envelope contained. "It is a free pass to our theatre," said he. "Who is the man?" we inquired. "That cobbler," he responded," is a wholesouled fellow who once half-soled my boots for nothing, when I was hard up and could not pay him for doing it. I have liquidated the indebtedness, long since, but I can never forget the favor, and when I have an opportunity to contribute to his pleasure, I shall always do so."

.....The San Francisco Minstrels having abdicated their hall, the same is now occupied by the Saturnma Troupe. It is to be hoped that their success will be such that, at the close of the season, the public may be able to say that they have sat summer entertainments through with pleasure. This is intended as a harmless, mirth provoking little joke, and as such we recommend it to the mercy of our readers.....The new drama now being produced at the Bowery Theatre, and entitled "On Hand," is likely to keep Johnny Thompson "on his feet" for some time. Do not rise, friends, we do not ask for your kind applause; it is our duty to amuse you.....'A Winter's Tale" is in preparation at Booth's Theatre. Would it not be well to get some of our sensational writers to "put a head on it?".....When the Theatre Comique commences operations at Broadway and Fourteenth street, all the performers who will appear there will act on "the Square." Do you think this squib very funny?.....'Les Georgiennes" and the "Grand Duchess" always draw well at Fisk's Grand Opera House, and this, we suppose, is the chief aim he has. (It may be well to remark for the benefit of the ignorant and depraved that Fisk's principal star at present is Mlle. Aimee—hence the connection.—ED.).....Friends, we have been talking to you in this jovial, conceited and self-opinionated manner for several years, and we are glad to know that on this, the opening of a new volume of the CLIPPER, not only do most of our old patrons survive, but thousands of new ones have been added to our list of followers. We never get off with the old love, although we may fancy the new; for, as we sit here so comfortably to-day, our thoughts go back to the olden time, when the CLIPPER was crawling, and struggling to get on its feet, and we think of the good old friends who extended a helping hand to us then, and by their kind words and kinder patronage assisted us to go alone in the game of life, and score the winning point. Yes, we see many of the old faces passing before us as we write, and they smile upon us still, and bid us follow out the path we have so successfully begun. A few who sailed with us in our earlier years have reached a haven of eternal rest; their places here are occupied by the rising generation; but memory will revert to the long ago, and, as the touching song has it,

"The heart still bends to the good old friends,
To the good old friends of yore—
And we turn with a sigh to the days gone by,
And the hearts that shall greet us no more."

City Summary.

DION BOUCICAULT'S last melodrama, in three acts, entitled "Jezebel," was produced, for the first time in this city, on Tuesday evening, March 28th, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, with the following cast:—

Geo. D'Arfagnac.....H. Harris | Bernardin.....W. Beekman
Alfred Ravel.....George Parkes | Mme. D'Artigues..Miss C. Morris
Capt. Breitman.....W. Davidge | Margaret Brietman..Miss L. Dietz
Cristol.....James Lewis | Lucele.....Miss Kate Claxton
Palma.....George De Vere | Gertrude..Miss Nellie Mortimer
Cotterau.....W. E. Pierce

The plot of the drama we published at the time of its original production in London, Eng. The chief character, and the one upon which the interest and attention of the audience was retained, that of M'me d'Artigues, was acted by Miss Clara Morris. In make-up and acting she was well nigh perfect. That she possesses sterling dramatic ability was clearly evinced by her personation of this role. The sudden changes of manner and action which M'me d'Artigues is compelled to use to hide her true character were most artistically portrayed, and, at the close of the drama, when all her plans of vengeance were thwarted at the very moment of seeming triumph, and her husband is informed of her life's career of imposture, her acting was grand. She was elegantly and correctly costumed. Miss Linda Dietz, who appeared only in the last act, played Margaret Brietman with care, and although the part is one that enlists the entire sympathies of the audience, still there was a something about her acting that in part marred the pleasure that should have attended it. School-girlishness comes near, but does not fully express it. Miss Kate Claxton played Lucele fairly, but the novice was very apparent. Miss Nellie Mortimer appeared to much disadvantage in the trunk, which she acted with care, grace and entire self-possession. Mr. Harkins had little to do as George d'Artigues, save in two scenes, in the last of which he was effective, barring certain unpicturesque attitudes. George Parkes, elegantly attired, played Alfred Ravel quietly and naturally. Mr. Davidge found in Captain Breitman one of those congenial spirits which enabled him to display the sterling merit he possesses and which has remained dormant for some time for lack of opportunity to use it. It was an artistic portraiture, thorough in detail, and evinced care, study and a knowledge of his art. James Lewis, as the good humored Cristol, a gentleman of the Mexican persuasion, inclined to bigamy, created considerable mirth; a portion of his costume was incorrect, and detracted from his performance. George de Vere, as Palmo—a Mexican villain and brother of Mme d'Artigues—gave a clever personation of that character, and, in the scene where he encounters the supposed ghost of Cristol, his acting was natural and effective. Mr. Pierce displayed sufficient dignity and pronounced his lines clearly in the first part of Cotterau, and Mr. Beekman's personation of the old servant Germain was commendable. The drama is brief, and displays knowledge of stage effect; some objections may possibly be raised to portions of the language and the manner in which certain dramatic points are accomplished; but as a one-part piece—for such it emphatically is—it may be pronounced as good as the average of such productions. There are but three scenes to the drama, one for each act. The first, an interior in d'Artigues house at Bordeaux, France; the second, a roadside inn, in Brazil, South America; and the last, an Alpine village—all of which are excellent. The drama announced here under the name of "Jesebel," which, however, is French for Jezebel, but all the London, Eng., advertisements named the latter orthography, a good sized audience witnessed its initial representation, and we see nothing to prevent its becoming a success.

A CYNOCEPHALUS appeared at the New York Circus on Monday evening, March 27th, and during the week. Several attempts have been made by the management to retain an attraction of this kind for a season, but the northern climate has ever proved too severe. The first one introduced some few years ago lived to perform a number of weeks, the second took cold off the banks of Newfoundland on its voyage to this country, and died of consumption ere it had appeared in public. The one at present performing we should judge to be of the dog-faced baboon species, as its head is shaped precisely like a dog. It is apparently a little more than a year old, but displays a wonderful degree of intelligence, and in riding an equestrian act—in which it leaps over banners and through balloons—the movements of a human figure are closely imitated; with a bow and a graceful gesture of the right arm all applause is acknowledged. On the evening that we attended, Wednesday, we saw it at a disadvantage, as its owner and trainer was ill and appeared in its stead. Nat Austin, the equestrian director, acted as its mentor, and, of course, it was not presumed that its entire accomplishments could be exhibited under such circumstances. The other attractions of the week consisted of Crystal Pyramids by Fred. Levantine, somersault riding by Frank Melville, Jr., the clever boy character of Wool, the trick pony Minna, performed by Wm. Organ; feats upon the tight-rope by Mlle. Jeannette Elsler; bareback equestrianism by Mlle. Rolland; Master George Donald, in his graceful and daring feats upon a bare-backed steed; leaps and somersaults by the corps of vaulters, who are excellent, and the mirth-provoking bon mots of the clowns, Joe Pentland and Julian Kent.

"BIRTH," the last comedy from the pen of the late T. W. Robertson, was acted for the first time in this city on Monday evening, March 27th, at Wallack's Theatre. The plot we published some time since, when the comedy was first acted in England. The comedy cannot conscientiously be pronounced a success. That Mr. Robertson wrote too much, and, consequently, too hastily, we believe is conceded, and that such was the case is apparent in his last work. He repeats himself. The comedy, which is in three acts, was admirably mounted, there being one scene to each act, all of which were gems. The cast was as follows:—

The Earl of Eaglecliffe..C. Fisher | Tom.....J. Peck
Paul Hewitt.....J. Gilbert | Pompeo.....J. Quigley
Jack Randall.....Lester Wallack | Lady Adeliza Stormont
"The Duke".....J. C. Williamson | Miss Helen Tracy
Stanton.....W. J. Leonard | Sarah Hewett..Mrs. Thos. Barry
Dick.....Master Carman

The characters, with one exception, were not strongly individualized, and consequently did not require any great amount of histrionic ability for their portrayal. Mr. Charles Fisher was dignified, careful and quiet as the Earl; Mr. Ringgold was satisfactory as Paul Hewitt; Mr. Lester Wallack played Jack Randall with vivacity, and in one scene he had an opportunity to display his mimic powers, in portraying several characters which he anticipated introducing in a new comedy. They were capitally rendered and obtained the hearty recognition of the audience. The Duke, the exceptional character referred to, was acted by Mr. Williamson with unexceptionable fidelity. Although far removed from the line of characters usually acted by him, he evidently bestowed upon it much study and reflection. He possesses a faculty, which should be more common with artists, of thoroughly disguising his personal appearance and to a very great extent the tones of his voice. His acting of this character was decidedly the feature in an artistic sense, of the comedy. The small parts of Stanton, by W. Leonard, and the chief workmen of the foundry by Curran, Peck and Quigley, received due care and attention. Both the female characters were decidedly weak, yet they were acted in a pleasing manner by Miss Helen Tracy and Mrs. Thomas Barry. The future announcements already made at this theatre is a confession of its weakness. It is a brief, as the performance did not commence until nearly half past eight, and, including two very long waits, it terminated a little after ten o'clock. It was acted during the week and Saturday matinee, save Saturday night. On Saturday evening, Bayle Bernard's comedy of the "Nervous Man" was acted for the first time at this theatre, together with Charles Selby's comedietta, entitled the "Unfinished Gentleman." In the former the excellent acting of Mr. John Gilbert as Aspen, and John Brougham as McShane, were triumphs of artistic skill. Mr. Gilbert's personation of the nervous man produced much merriment and was loudly applauded, and in one scene the performance was interrupted until Mr. Gilbert returned to the stage in answer to a unanimous recall. The other characters were well acted, with the exception of Emily Vivian. In the "Unfinished Gentleman," the interest of the audience was centred upon Bill Downey, which was excellently acted by J. H. Stoddart. Mr. Williamson created much mirth by his clever performance of Jem Miller, while Miss Effie Germon was all that could be desired as Mary Chintz. Mr. M. Lanagan acted Lord Tenterly, of the Sir Harcourt Courtley school, with care and precision.

J. J. MCCLOSKEY is now engaged in writing a new play for Mrs. Ettie Henderson entitled "Far West; or, The Bounding Fawn," with which she will star next season.

M. HITTEMANS AND M. VARLET, of the opera bouffe troupe playing at the Grand Opera House, sailed by the steamship St. Laurent for France, on Wednesday, March 29th.

"LOHENGRIN," one of the best of Wagner's operas, is announced for production, for the first time in America, this evening, April 3d, at the Stadt Theatre.

THE BERGER FAMILY, Swiss bell ringers, will make their first appearance in New York during the coming summer, at Lina Edwin's Theatre.

THE PRESENT WEEK, which is the last of Lent, and commonly called Holy Week, is generally considered the worst of the year.

MR. A. ROLO, formerly the manager of the theatre in Mobile, Ala., proposes opening a spring and summer season at San Francisco Hall this evening (April 3d). The first attraction he will present will be Satsuma's Royal Japanese Troupe, numbering some twenty performers, who are said to be stars in their business. At all events the attraction will be fresh and novel, as not one of these artists has ever appeared in public in this city. They have met with much success during the past season in tour through the country, and wherever they have appeared our correspondents have pronounced their performances superior to those hitherto offered by any similar troupe.

JAMES BENNETT, tragedian, who is to act Richard III at Niblo's Garden shortly, arrived in this city March 30th, per steamer "Java."

D. G. WALDRON AND GEORGE C. HURLBURT, of the Alleghanians, vocalists and Swiss bell ringers, are in the city for a few days. The Alleghanians are now making a tour of the Eastern States.

HARRY CUNNINGHAM has dissolved his partnership with T. A. Dow, and now conducts the Eureka dramatic agency, 636 Broadway, alone. John O. Campbell, W. H. Whalley, Chas. Foster, Jennie Benson and Col. South Goshen continue to transact business through Mr. Cunningham, as will be seen by advertisements in another column. Mr. C. also wishes it known that he is in no way connected with the Fourteenth Street Theatre.

CHARLES STORMS, minstrel performer, arrived in town from San Francisco, Cal., during the past week.

T. A. Dow requests us to say that he will shortly open in this city a dramatic agency.

THIS WEEK, which terminates the forty days and equal number of nights, of Lent, will probably add but little to the finances of our theatrical friends; yet notwithstanding the gloomy prospects, our managers have provided very attractive programmes for the entertainment of those who may be induced to favor them with their presence. Our advertising columns will show what is to be done, and who are to take part in the exercises.

DAN SHELBY is to arrive in this city during the present week to engage a company for his new variety hall, to be shortly opened in Buffalo, N.Y., under the title of Shelby's Theatre Comique.

JOHN E. MCDONOUGH and Joseph Murphy, both of Philadelphia, Pa., were in town during the past week.

"OTHELLO" was acted at Booth's during the past week, with the same changes in the cast as during the previous week. It was withdrawn after the performance of April 1st. On the 3d the "Fool's Revenge" will be produced. On Wednesday evening, although Mr. Lawrence Barrett was announced to play "Hamlet" for the first time in this city, he will perform in the "Marble Heart."

THE LINGARDS attracted good sized audiences at Lina Edwin's Theatre during the past week. W. Horace Lingard introduced several novelties among his sketches and songs, which met with favor from the audiences, and "Time Tries All" was acted on Monday evening; "Davy's Love" on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and "All that Glitters is not Gold" was performed on Wednesday and Saturday evenings. At the conclusion of the engagement of the Lingards, Mr. George Clarke and Miss Lina Edwin will appear in a new play entitled "Pinck," written by Mr. De Leon, whose travestie upon "Hamlet" met with favor from the public of this city some time since. Mr. Harry Eytinge will return to the stage and appear in the same play, for which Mr. and Mrs. George C. Boniface, T. E. Morris, Mark Bates and Miss Lillie Eldridge have been engaged.

THE LAST WEEK OF THE "BLACK CROOK" will be the present one, as it must be withdrawn to give place to "Richard III" on April 10th, in which Mr. Warde will play Richmond. On Tuesday evening one of the little sons of Professor Nelson met with a slight accident, dislocating his elbow, which prevented their again appearing during the week. Signor Lozada, the clever juggler, whose performances have been often reviewed in these columns, appeared on Wednesday evening and during the balance of the week. Miss Fanny Prestige, who had been confined to her house by illness for the past two weeks, re-appeared on Monday evening, 27th.

JOHNNY THOMPSON has continued his successful engagement at the Bowery Theatre during the past week. Seats have been in demand every night, and the sensational elements in "On Hand"—which was performed during the entire week—seems to have given satisfaction to the audiences.

FAIR SIZED AUDIENCES have witnessed the continued representation of "Horizon" at the Olympic Theatre during the past week. The piece has been somewhat curtailed in its dialogue, and now acts more compactly.

MISS ESTELLE HYAMS and Marietta Zanfretta were the fresh faces that appeared at the Theatre Comique since our last. The former is a serio-comic vocalist of merit, who succeeded in establishing herself a favorite in the estimation of her auditors; the latter, a tight rope performer of undoubted excellence, whose graceful poses and daring feats, which apparently defy the laws of equilibrium, were enthusiastically applauded. J. H. Milburn continued during the week singing favorite selections from his budget of songs, and performing, in a clever manner, a Lancashire clog hornpipe. The programme also embraced a ballet, in which M'lles Augusta and Bertha, supported by the excellent corps de ballet, displayed their artistic skill; Hughey Dougherty in his comical stump speech; "Fattie" Stewart, Lew Rattler, George Coes, James Wambold and others in humorous sketches, and the last scene in a pantomime. Miss Fanny Lucile, who has been ill for some time, reappeared during the week. For the present week the fresh attractions announced are Mlle Geraldine, a gymnast, of whom report speaks most creditably; M'me Tarelle, an operatic prima donna; a new ballet divertissement, entitled, "The Greek Festival;" and a new comic pantomime, entitled "Mad as a March Hare," in which the Lauri Family will appear.

THE SEASON OF THE SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS closed with the performance of April 1st, and they start at once upon a traveling tour. "The Golden Showers," written by James Moss, was performed by Johnny Queen and Billy West, in their usual excellent manner and met with the recognition from the audience. Rollin Howard sang one of his own new compositions entitled "Walking in the Snow," which achieved success. Charley Backus gave his excellent imitation of prominent actors. Billy Birch created much mirth in a sketch called "Dr. Hemlock's Office." The pleasing tenor voice of D. S. Wambold was heard to excellent advantage in the first part, while the dignified manner of W. Bernard served as a foil for the witticisms of the end men. It is said that the troupe will return to the same location in the early fall.

MISS ADA WRAY, serio-comic vocalist, re-appeared at Tony Pastor's, and with the Kincade Family, who made their first appearance, constituted the fresh attraction during the past week. Miss Wray met with a hearty welcome and is a favorite with the audiences. The Kincade Family appeared in acrobatic feats, which, although no novelty was attempted, were cleverly performed, and in the evening they executed some gymnastic feats upon aerial bars, which evinced both daring and skill. Tony Pastor, as usual, sang several comic songs, and the regular company appeared in a variety of acts and sketches which elicited much comment. The large and commodious refreshment saloon, elegantly fitted up and supplied with chairs, tables, etc., adjoining the main entrance to the auditorium, has recently been opened.

AN ALMOST ENTIRE CHANGE OF PROGRAMME was presented to the frequenters of Bryant's new Opera House during the past week. Monroe Dempster sang "Evangeline," "I'll be Freed," "I'll Tell You Who," D'Alberti, "There's No Such Word As Fail;" H. Norman, "Goodbye, but Come Again," and W. F. Stanley, 'The Bird Upon a Tree." In the second part a variety of old acts, which had not been performed for some time, probably, were revived. Among them Dan Bryant's performance of Funny Jim, "Keemes the Poet," deserves creditable mention. During the summer this troupe will play an engagement at the Globe Theatre, Boston, Mass., and will visit some of the principal New England cities.

O. D. BYRON continued his successful personation of the Ferret in "Across the Continent," which has attracted large audiences to Wood's Museum during the week. The plot we published some time since, when the comedy was first acted in England. The comedy cannot conscientiously be pronounced a success. That Mr. Robertson wrote too much, and, consequently, too hastily, we believe is conceded, and that such was the case is apparent in his last work. He repeats himself. The comedy, which is in three acts, was admirably mounted, there being one scene to each act, all of which were gems. The cast was as follows:—

The Earl of Eaglecliffe..C. Fisher | Tom.....J. Peck
Paul Hewitt.....J. Gilbert | Pompeo.....J. Quigley
Jack Randall.....Lester Wallack | Lady Adeliza Stormont
"The Duke".....J. C. Williamson | Miss Helen Tracy
Stanton.....W. J. Leonard | Sarah Hewett..Mrs. Thos. Barry
Dick.....Master Carman

The characters, with one exception, were not strongly individualized, and consequently did not require any great amount of histrionic ability for their portrayal. CINCINNATI THEATRICALS are given by our correspondent, dated March 31, as follows:—"Fannie Janauschek wound up her engagement at Wood's on Saturday, 25th, as Lady Macbeth. Her revival of the 'Winter's Tale,' on the previous evening, was not very successful, though a brilliant audience greeted it. She was rather too heavy and tragic for Hermione, displaying too little of womanly feeling. Nor was the general cast very happy. Shewell's Leontes was only tolerable. Locke did not make as much of Antolycus as he might, and there is very little in the other characters. On Monday, 27th, Stuart Robson opened to a full house in 'Everybody's Friend,' a burlesque on 'Camille,' and the farce of the 'Spitfire,' which he calls the 'Sea-sick Tobacconist.' Robson is, in very many respects, an excellent comedian, and he evidently goes upon the hypothesis that people who come to see a comedian desire to be amused. His Wellington De Boots was an extravagant piece of comic portrayal, and at once established him in favor. The play itself was very nicely acted. Burroughs was completely at home as Featherly, and Locke, as Icebrook, though in a new line of business for him, performed the part cleverly and humorously. Mrs. Crampton was capital as Mrs. Major De Boots, and the other female roles—Mrs. Swanscown, Mrs. Featherly and Fanny—the by Misses Bailey, Chambers and Salisbury, were in the hands of ladies who looked and acted prettily. Robson's Camille was a ludicrous piece of burlesque, his songs and his cough being quite refreshing. Tuesday the 'Heir at Law' was given and was acted well all through. Mr. Robson's Pangloss was amusing without at all descending to buffoonery. Among the support, the Zekiel Homespun of Forsberg, Dick Dowlass of Burroughs, Cicely Homespun of Haswell, Dr. Pelter of Locke, and Lady Duberly of Charlotte Crampton deserve especial note. 'Jones' Baby' concluded the performance. On Wednesday, 'Married Life,' 'John Wopps' and the 'Wandering Minstrel' were given, and last night (Thursday), 'Everybody's Friend,' 'Camille' and 'Jones' Baby.' For his benefit, to-night, Mr. Robson is to appear as Mawworm, in the fine old Comedy of 'The Hypocrite,' also in the farces of 'Mazeppa,' 'Betsy Baker,' and 'Sea-sick Tobacconist.' Many of these farces are inclined to vulgarity and are decidedly more relished in the gallery than the dress circle. It is to be regretted that Robson does not put a few more standard pieces in his repertoire. His engagement tures next week will be a panorama 'Across the Plains,' new song and dance, 'Patchary,' by Emerson, and commencement of an engagement by the Reynolds Brothers. .....At the Bella Union, a Miss Laura Wood is performing the thrilling feat of playing a penny trumpet solo while balancing on a slack wire.

THE ADMIRABLE COMPANY at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, received a most welcome addition last week in the person of Miss Fanny Davenport, who made her debut on the 27th ult., as Lady Gay Spanker in "London Assurance." Miss Fanny Davenport has much improved during the short period which has elapsed since her last appearance in Philadelphia, and, as Lady Gay Spanker, exhibited an amount of artistic excellence which obtained her frequent applause, in addition to which she was summoned before the curtain at the close of the comedy to receive a well merited compliment for her thoroughly effective performance. Miss Davenport had the advantage of being admirably supported. Mr. E. L. Davenport's Dazzle was a most artistic effort, and Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Jr., was gentlemanly and graceful in his appearance and acting as Charles Courtley, and delivered the text of his part with much intelligence. Miss L. V. Davenport made a very pretty Grace Harkaway, and enacted her part with much piquancy and spirit. The cast of "London Assurance" altogether seems to meet with the most cordial approbation, and it will stand the stage until Thursday evening, when it was withdrawn to make room for "Frou-Frou," in which Miss Fanny Davenport, as Gilberte, gave abundant proof of that ability which has elsewhere established her fame. Friday evening, the 31st ult., was set apart for her benefit, when she appeared as Volante in the "Honeymoon," and was greeted with much applause by a very large audience. The amusing farce of "Delicate Ground" introduced Mr. Charles Allerton, from the London theatres, to Philadelphia audiences. Miss Fanny Davenport closed her very successful engagement on the evening of the 1st inst., in "London Assurance." During the present week "A New Way to Pay Old Debts" will be repeated on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. On Thursday evening there will be produced, for the first time in that city "The Marquis; or, False and True," translated from the French by Mrs. E. Edward Lewis, of Philadelphia. Miss L. V. Davenport will have a benefit at this theatre on the 10th inst.

MARIAN TAYLOR, burlesque actress, opera at the opera house, Syracuse, N. Y., on April 11th. Managers can engage her after the 13th, through Col. T. A. Brown.

THE RECONSTRUCTED "BLACK CROOK," with all its special attractions as now presented at Niblo's Garden, will be produced at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on Monday evening, April 17th, under the conjunctive management of Messrs. Jarrett and Palmer, of Niblo's Garden, and Mr. John E. McDonough, of Philadelphia. The Nelson Family, the Majiltons, and the entire Viennoise and Parisienne ballet troupes will appear in this spectacle, which will be illustrated by the original scenery and costumes, and acted with the following cast:—

Count Wolfenstein...J. Mathews	Wolfgar.....W. A. Whitecare
Rudolphe.....Willis Page	Caspar.....R. M. Smith
Von Puffengrantz....	Sinlacia...Miss Pauline Markham
Thos. A'Beckett, Sr.	Amina.....Miss May Davenport
Hertzog.....M. Sleven	Dame Barbara.....
Greppo.....Oliver Wren	Miss Elzuth Andrews
Dragonfin.....Harry Leslie	Carline.....Miss Lizzie Kelsey
Zamiel.....Mait. Snyder	Rosetta.....Miss Warren

THE SEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE, Philadelphia, after remaining closed the past two weeks, will re-open on the 3d inst., under the management of Messrs. W. H. Smith and C. E. Rollins, and will be hereafter known as the "Alhambra Theatre." The allegorical drama of "The War for the Union; or, the Heroine of Manassas," will be presented during the opening week, under the auspices of Ellis Post, Grand Army of the Republic. It is the intention of Messrs. Smith and Rollins to establish a strictly first-class variety theatre here.

"NECK AND NECK; or, the Hangman's Noose," a sensational drama in three acts, by Mr. Charles Foster, was the novelty at the National Theatre, in Washington, D. C., during the past week. Our correspondent "Novice" says:—"The production of the drama served to introduce to the habitues of the National Mr. E. T. Stetson, a rising young actor, who sustained the character of Walter Wilmarth, and favorably impressed all who saw him. The first representation of the play was witnessed by a small audience, but this can be accounted for when it is known that Mr. Owens put in an extra night at Wall's on the same evening. On the second night there was an improvement in the size of the audience, and towards the end of the week, on the pay day of the clerks in the departments rolled around (this occurs on the last day of each month), business brightened up considerably. During the run of "Neck and Neck" at the Bowery Theatre, in New York, the CLIPPER published the plot of the piece, and so it is needless to repeat it here. The cutting down from the gallows of Wilmarth by a frail idiotic girl, and she carrying him away is rather improbable. Executions generally occur in daylight, and not long after sunset, and it is quite absurd to suppose that gallows are ever erected in close proximity to a fence built low enough for a girl to scale. The scene is thrilling and exciting, however, and is a positive novelty. The railroad train, dashing along at a terrific speed, created the greatest enthusiasm, and as Wilmarth, Mr. Stetson is conspicuous in this scene, he was obliged to appear before the curtain at the close of the act. John Wilson, who appeared as Jim Johnson, the waif and stray, deserves a great deal of praise. He gave a life-like picture of a man reduced to misery and wretchedness by the use of strong drink, and throughout the play he received several well deserved rounds of applause. Kate Denin, Mrs. Germon, Miss Joan Stevens, Mrs. Parker and Messrs. Foster, Collins, Pierce, Kennedy and Parkhurst sustained the other characters very creditably. April 3d Mr. F. S. Chanfrau appears.....Manager Barton, of Wall's Opera House, has had an unfortunate week of it. He engaged M'lle Januschek, who was in Cincinnati, to open on March 27th. It was found that she could not arrive in time to open as expected, and as Mr. Owens had a few open nights, he was induced to remain to fill in on Monday evening. On Tuesday evening M'lle Januschek was to have opened in 'Mary Stuart,' but Miss Alice Hawthorne, who was cast for Queen Elizabeth,' was suddenly taken ill, and there was no performance. Mr. Barton at once repaired to Baltimore to secure a leading lady to fill Miss Hawthorne's place, but was not successful, and returning, he announced the postponement, for the present, of M'lle Januschek's engagement, and the temporary closing up of his theatre."

A DRAMATIC COMPANY, two premiere danseuses, twenty ballet ladies and a brass and string band, are wanted to travel during the coming season. Address Palmer & Co., as per advertisement.

THE GERMAN OPERA TROUPE performed in Lykins, Pa., March 25th and 26th; Sunbury, 27th and 28th; Lewisburg, 29th and 30th; Milton, 31st and April 1st, and are announced to play three nights in Elliot's Academy of Music, Williamsport, commencing April 3d.

JOHNNY ALLEN, who acts in his new play of "Schneider," commences in Albany, N. Y., for two weeks, and then Cleveland, O.

THE CHAPMAN SISTERS' BURLESQUE TROUPE were detained some hours at Jonesborough, Ga., while en route from Atlanta to Macon, by reason of a freight train being off the track. While waiting for the track to be cleared, some of the male members of the troupe strolled to a grocery near by, and their curiosity being excited by some lettering on the back of a bench upon which some men were sitting, one of the members of the troupe, in a respectful manner, requested one of the men sitting upon the bench to allow them to see what the letters were on the bench behind him, to which the person addressed replied by uttering a dirty remark about theatre people, whereupon Mr. Harry Ford, the manager of the troupe, remarked that he "did not know that the young men south were so rude." The bully jumped up, and drawing his revolver, accompanied utterance of opprobrious epithets, attempted to shoot Mr. Ford, when W. A. Gregston caught the revolver with his right hand, and placed his left around the cylinder and upon the caps, thereby preventing its being fired. The ruffian snapped the pistol three or four times, cutting Greyston's thumb in two or three places. At length some of the bully's friends interfered and took the pistol from him, and Mr. Gregston escaped without further injury. He displayed much courage in saving Mr. Ford's life at the risk of his own.

"RED, SHELDON & ENOS' MIRTHFUL MOMENTS" is the title of a new organization formed some three weeks since. It consists of the following persons:—A. H. Sheldon, Albert G. Enos, Jr., George W. Reed, Jule Wright, George Sands, Everett Harrison, Jr., George W. Reed, Mrs. George Sands and Miss Fannie Gilmer. Lew Montgomery is the agent. They performed in Valiska, Iowa, March 27th and 28th; Red Oak, 29th and 30th; Glenwood, 31st and April 1st, and are billed to play in Council Bluffs, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th, and then through Nebraska.

THE WORRELL SISTERS—Sophie and Jennie—and their burlesque troupe performed in Akron, O., three nights, commencing March 30th, and are billed to perform in Mansfield, April 2d and 3d; Lima, 4th and 5th; Fort Wayne, Ind., 6th and 7th.

LOTTA is to play six nights, commencing June 1st, in the new Academy of Music, Akron, O., which performances will be the first of a dramatic nature in that theatre.

LIZA WEBER, favorably remembered by her blonde burlesques, has been the star at the Opera House, Quincy, Ill., during the past week. Our correspondent, "Nimrod," writing on March 29th, says:—"They opened on the 24th inst. in 'Ernani' and the farce of 'The Quiet Family.' Golden hair, stunning make-up and a gorgeous display of female loveliness proved a strong attraction for the sterner sex, and the audiences have been treated to a variety of crowded houses. Miss Weber played Ernani in a lively, rollicking manner, sang prettily, acted naively and danced charmingly. Miss Hattie O'Neill made a captivating Don Carlos, and, as a person in the parquet remarked, 'looked perfectly stunnin.' Miss Edith Blande, as Donna Elvira, was pretty and made numerous friends. This young lady has only recently joined the troupe. She is pretty, piquant and talented, and will attract attention. Misses Cassie Troy and Nellie Smith are very fair; they have attractive forms, can sing tolerably and dance in the same manner, but possess no decided talent. The three comedians, Vincent, Ketchum and Crosbie, are clever in all they undertake, and each comes in for a share of applause. Vincent is an excellent dancer and is wonderfully agile. He leaves the party on the 31st and goes to the Metropolitan Theatre, Indianapolis, Ind. Atkins, having recovered from his late sickness, will resume his old position immediately at the departure of Vincent. On Saturday, 28th, 'La Sonnambula' was given, and for the matinee 'Ernani' was repeated. In the evening Miss Weber, while rendering her usual budget of songs, sang 'The Little Church Around the Corner,' and the persistent audience compelled her to repeat it as many as four times, and on each occasion the little lady seemed to derive as much enjoyment in singing it as the audience did in hearing her.....J. A. Lord's Dramatic Company, who have recently been playing at the Opera House here, left last evening for St. Paul, where they are to play a brief season.....The Worrell Sisters commence an engagement on April 19th."

AT THE OLYMPIC, St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. D. P. Bowers and J. C. McCollom closed a brilliant engagement on March 25th, having played one week longer than previously intended, in consequence of the non-arrival of the Oates Troupe, on Monday, March 27th, Mrs. Oates' Comic Opera Company opened with "Fair One with the Blonde Wig," and have played to good business during the week.

AT THE ST. CHARLES THEATRE, New Orleans, La., J. K. Emmett brought his engagement to a close on Sunday evening, March 26th, the last evening of his engagement being set apart for the benefit of P. Gleason, the treasurer. The house was quite full. On the 27th, Edwin Adams commenced an engagement, appearing as Enoch Arden in the beautiful drama of that name, supported by the company, Mr. J. W. Norton appearing as Philip Ray, Mr. John Davis as Reuben, Mr. W. J. Fleming as Captain Sterling, Mr. St. Clair as the Boatswain, Mr. A. E. Kelley as Peter Lane, Mrs. Mary Mitchell Albaugh as Anne Leigh, Miss Lizzie Herbert as Miriam Lane, Miss Hattie Vallee as Esther Arden, and Miss Kate Shubert as Walter Arden. The drama was well placed on the stage, especially the fourth act, the deserted island in the tropics, which happily realized Tennyson's exquisite poem, as in fact did several other scenes. Mr. Adams will stay with us two weeks, when he will go to Kansas City, Mo., en route to San Francisco. After Mr. Adams, and to play for one week, commencing April 10th, Little Nell, the California Diamond, will appear. So wrote our correspondent under date of March 27th.

A BASE BALL DRAMA is shortly to be brought out by that fertile writer of sensational plays, Mr. J. McCloskey. The plot of the play will embrace some exciting scenes connected with a "Hippodrome" game of ball, showing up some of the evils which have grown up with the game of late years.

MARIETTA RAVEL has just concluded a two weeks' engagement at the Montana Theatre, Central City, Colorado Ter., concerning which an occasional correspondent, writing on March 27th, says:—"On Monday, March 20th, she produced 'Wept of the-Wish-ton-Wish,' and appeared in her tight-rope act without the aid of a balance pole. On Tuesday 'The Child of the Wreck,' and for her benefit on Wednesday she appeared as Cynthia, the Gypsy Queen, to an overflowing house. On Thursday we had Miss Ravel as the Dumb Boy of Manchester, and also upon the tight rope. Her hat performance on the rope was especially admirable. On Friday the 'Broken Sword,' followed by one of Langrishe's inimitable farces, were acted, and on Saturday Miss Ravel closed her engagement, appearing in three characters in the 'Wizard Skiff.' Mart. Hanley, agent for Miss Ravel, leaves Denver, Col., about March 31st, for Salt Lake City, Utah, to arrange for that lady's appearance at Brigham Young's Theatre on April 10th."

CHARLES T. PARELON and his pupil, Master Sniffen, performed in a new local drama, written expressly for them by Mr. H. A. Weaver, and entitled "Flashes of City Life," at the Opera House, Providence, R. I., during the entire past week, and they are announced to produce the same piece in Taunton, Mass., on April 6th.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, CLEVELAND, O., Frank Mayo commenced his second week's engagement on the 27th of March, with his own dramatization of "Man and Wife," and attracted a very good audience. On the 28th, at the invitation of Mr. Mayo, O'Donovan Rossa was present, and "The Soldier of the Rhine" and "Robert Emmet" were presented to an excellent house; on the 29th the "Three Guardsmen" was performed; 30th, "Lancashire Lass," in which Mayo as a Parly by the Name of Johnson; 31st, for his benefit, "Not Guilty" was produced. At the matinee, on the 25th, "Fanchon" was presented, with Miss Effie Ellsler, for the first time, as the Cricket. She played the part excellently, and made a decided hit in it. These matinees have now become great features. Next week (this) the stock company will occupy the boards, and the following week Lucy Rushton and her "Red Hands" will be exhibited. So writes our correspondent, "Olaude."

MR. MCWADE'S RIP VAN WINKLE met with a hearty reception at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, during the week ending April 1st, and its success was well merited, for not only is the drama considered a better acting version of Irving's story than that of Boucicault's, but Mr. McWade's rendering of the character of Rip Van Winkle is thought by many equal if not superior to that of Jefferson, though that is saying a great deal. His make-up in the latter part of the play is not quite so artistic, perhaps, but his personation of the character in the pathetic scenes of the play is admirable. The drama was presented in good style, the scene in the mountains being one of the best representations we have seen on the Park stage this season. Mr. McWade is evidently an intelligent and pains-taking actor, and in his specialty of "Rip Van Winkle" ranks with the best now on the stage. This week Mr. J. C. Campbell appears at the Park Theatre in McCloskey's sensational drama of "Pomp,"

Musical.

AT ST. LOUIS, MO., the English Combination Opera Troupe commenced a short season at De Bar's Opera House on Monday, March 27th, opening in "Maritana" to a good house. "The Huguenots" was to have been the opening bill, but in consequence of Mrs. Bernard and Mr. Castle suffering from a cold, the latter mentioned piece had to be substituted. In criticising the performance, our correspondent, writing on March 31st, says:—Miss Emma Howson sang Maritana very finely, and several of her arias were warmly applauded. Don Cæsar was rendered quite well by Brookhouse Bowler. Tuesday night, the 28th, 'The Bohemian Girl' was produced. Miss Emma Howson in the role of Arline, sang 'I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls' with much feeling, and Mr. Bowler rendered 'The Fair Land of Poland' with fine effect. Devilshoof was ably represented by Mr. E. Seguin. 'Il Trovatore' was given Wednesday night, and 'The Huguenots' Thursday—the artists having recovered sufficiently to appear. The bill for to-night (Friday the 31st), is 'The Marriage of Figaro;' Saturday, 'Der Freischutz,' with 'Martha' for the matinee. Monday, April 3d, Madame Methua Scheller will probably commence an engagement."

PROF. FRED. W. ZAULIG, leader of orchestra and manager, who has had considerable experience, advertises that he can be engaged.

MUSIC for brass bands and some of the most popular songs of the day can be had of White, Smith & Perry, who advertise.

THEODORE THOMAS' orchestra appeared in three concerts at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the evenings of March 31st and April 1st, and at a matinee on the afternoon of the last mentioned date. The concerts were well attended, especially on the evening of the 31st ult., the occasion of Mr. Alfred Selimer's annual benefit.

BECK'S PHILADELPHIA BAND will give a vocal and instrumental concert at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the evening of the 18th inst., assisted by the Irma Glee Club, Signora Caramano, the Hayes' Quartet and Becks' Military Band.

THE BOSTON QUINTETTE CLUB gave a concert at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the evening of the 30th ult., which was attended by a large and appreciative audience.

A MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT in aid of the "Little Sisters of the Poor" will be given by Miss Eugenia Stuart at the Amateur Drawing-room, Philadelphia, on the evening of the 10th inst.

ROSSINI'S "STABAT MATER" was sung at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the occasion of M'lle Nilsson's concert in that city on the evening of the 29th ult. The Handel and Haydn Society were secured to properly render the choruses, and the principal parts were assigned as follows:—Soprano, M'lle Christina Nilsson; contralto, M'lle Annie Louise Carey; tenor, Signor Brignoli; basso, Signor N. Verger. Only one concert was given by M'lle Nilsson in Philadelphia, the management, fearing that the public of that city had a surfeit of concerts, very wisely deciding not to give the concert announced for the 28th ult. The attendance on the evening of the 29th ult. was fair only.

MISS GREENFIELD, well known as the "Black Swan," is to give a concert at Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, on the evening of the 6th inst.

A CONCERT will be given at the Amateur Drawing Room, Philadelphia, on the 18th inst., in which Madame Behrens and other artists will appear. The concert is for the benefit of the French and German sufferers.

MR. THOMAS E. HARKINS, of Philadelphia, with a fine concert troupe, will soon start on a professional tour through the "oil regions" of Pennsylvania.

MRS. SUSAN GALTON KELLEHER will give a concert at Musical Fund Hall, Philadelphia, on the 14th inst., assisted by Mrs. Josephine Schimpf, Mr. George Simpson, Mr. Alfred Kelleher, Mr. W. Gilchrist and Mr. Frank Gilder.

SEVERAL MUSICIANS are wanted for Dupres and Benedict's Minstrels, who can be addressed as per card elsewhere.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY, of Washington, presented the grand oratorio of the "Messiah," at Lincoln Hall, in that city, on March 30th. Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, the distinguished soprano; Miss Antoinette Sterling, contralto; Mr. George Simpson, tenor, and Mr. M. W. Whitney, basso, were the soloists.

THE GRAND ENGLISH OPERA COMBINATION, under the management of C. D. Hess & Co., are to appear at the Opera House in Springfield, Ill., two nights, opening on the 4th of April. The "Bohemian Girl" will be presented the first night and "Il Trovatore" the second. Mr. Orton H. Hess is the advance agent for the party, and left Springfield for Cincinnati on the 27th, to make arrangements for the appearance of the company in that city on the 6th, and from there they go to Indianapolis for the 7th and 8th, and open in Cincinnati on the 10th, for two weeks.

HANDEL'S MESSIAH was rendered at Masonic Temple, Baltimore, Md., on March 31st. Miss Clara Louise Kellogg was the prima donna, and Miss Antoinette Sterling, contralto; Mr. Geo. Simpson, tenor; M. W. Whitney, of Boston, basso, and the chorus by the Philharmonic Society of Washington, D. C., consisting of 150 voices. It proved to be the grand musical event of the season, and the arias, choruses and recitations, especially the latter by Whitney, were vociferously applauded by a crowded and fashionable audience.

THE UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB, of Ann Arbor, Mich., gave a Concert at Fenton Hall, March 31st.

LAFLEUR'S MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS can be had of T. Rosenstein, who advertises.

JOE RAMPONE, clarionet and bass alto soloist, late of Kelly & Leon's Minstrels, can be engaged. His address is care of this office.

MISS EMMA FAIREX made her first appearance in concert, since her return from her studies in Paris, at Odd Fellows' Hall, New Orleans, La., on Wednesday evening, March 22d, concerning which our correspondent "Crescent," writing under date of March 27th, says:—"She is the daughter of a very estimable gentleman engaged in cigar manufacturing, and possesses a fine musical organ. Some three years ago she was sent to Paris, where she made vocal music a special study. Her voice is a mezzo soprano, quite flexible and sweet. She will shortly make her appearance in the lyric drama in London, where she has been engaged to appear during the coming summer. Miss Fairex sang a cavatina from 'Somnambula,' and Carlotta Patti's famous laughing song, in admirable style. She was assisted by a Miss A. S——, a pupil of the well known basso, Mr. Van Huffen; also by Mr. Van Huffen himself, and by two of the Franko children—the Misses Jeanette and Rachel—who, in their duett on violins, won the admiration of all present. Taken as a whole, the concert was one of the most successful of the season."

THE PEAK FAMILY, Bell Ringers, are billed to perform in Owosso, Mich., April 3d.

THE FAIRBAIRN FAMILY of Scottish vocalists sang in Rockford, Ill., March 31st.

THE APPY CONCERT TROUPE is billed to perform in Oswego, N. Y., April 3d; Elmira, 4th; Corning, 5th and 6th; Hornellsville, 7th, and Jamestown, 8th.

BLIND TOM performed in Wellsville, N. Y., March 28th; Columbus, O., April 1st, and is billed to perform in Cincinnati, 3d, 4th and 5th; Newport, Ky., 6th; Covington, 7th; Paris, 8th; Lexington, 10th and 11th; Frankfort, 12th; Shelbyville, 13th; Louisville, 14th and 15th; Jeffersonville, Ind., 17th; New Albany, 18th; Bowling Green, Ky., 19th; Clarksville, Tenn., 20th; Memphis, one week, commencing the 24th and thence to Nashville.

PROFESSOR A. G. VANDENBERG, a leader of orchestra, who was widely known in the profession, died at the residence of his brother in Clyde, Ky., on Friday, March 4th.

THE IRMA GLEE AND BATCHELOR'S COMBINATION TROUPE is announced to perform in Allentown, Pa., on April 4th, for the benefit of the Allen Rifles.

THE SPAULDING BELL RINGERS AND CONCERT TROUPE performed in Bath, N. Y., March 29th; Dansville, 30th and 31st; Liberty, 1st; and is billed to perform in Prattsburg, 3d; Branchport, 4th; Pen Yan, 5th; Dundee, 6th, and Canandaigua, 7th.

THE MENDELSSOHN QUINTETTE CLUB are announced to perform in Trinsville, Pa., April 3d.

THE BERGER FAMILY SWISS BELL RINGERS, who are reported to have met with considerable success in their recent tour through Tennessee, are now playing along the Ohio River, and were at Louisville, Ky., on the 30th and 31st ult. and 1st inst. They were to be at Jeffersonville, Ind., on the 3d, New Albany, 4th and 5th, and are announced to be in Vincennes, 6th, Evansville, 7th and 8th, Terre Haute, 10th and 11th, and to open at Mercantile Library Hall, St. Louis, on the 12th, for four nights.

Variety Halls.

NELLIE CLIFFORD received a benefit at Titusville, Pa., March 25th. She received special permission from the city authorities to give a variety show for that night only.

THE MISSES BETTIE DE LOSO and Kitty Sharpe closed at the Theatre Comique, Petersburg, Va., April 1st.

FITZGERALD'S OPERA HOUSE, Rochester, N. Y., closed suddenly and without notice, on March 27th, and the company has disbanded, Carrie and Harry Wharie going with Van Amburgh's show, Miss Celia Berry with Lloyd's Sensation Troupe, Geo. Primrose and Maud Purdy, Lydia Howard and John P. Price, to Buffalo; Ada Newhouse, leader of orchestra, to Wild's, Syracuse, and Gus Clark and Sadie Rogers remain in the city. The opera house will be used no more for show business, as it has been leased for other purposes. So writes our correspondent, "Limpe."

FRANK BELL, eccentric song and dance performer, can be addressed at Trimble's Varieties, Pittsburgh, Pa.

AT THE METROPOLITAN, Indianapolis, Ind., Mr. Walter Bray continues to gain several encores in his cerkographs and has shown his ability to play low comedy by appearing as Jem Bags in the "Wandering Minstrel." Miss Nellie Taylor is lulled to sing twice nightly, but her friends demand so many encores as to completely fatigue the fair cantatrice. Her rendering of "The Little Church Around the Corner" has created a furore. The Misses Maggie Clark, Mollie Somers and Elise Simpson still hold their own, and their popularity is unabated. Mr. Geo. L. Hall, Johnny Stout, the silver toned tenor, and Johnny Smith, the colored soloist, are as great favorites as ever. The additions to the company are Master Johnny, in Dutch songs and dances; Master Mackin, colored songs and dances; Miss Minnie Bake, terpsichorean artist, and Mazori Arnoldi, who has created quite a sensation in her beautiful poses of classical statuary. On March 31st Walter Bray had a benefit, and Oscar Willis, Ben Wheeler, Emile De Courcy and Little Bennie appeared. Sam Sharpley was also announced to return to the stage for that night only to benefit his friend Bray.

AT THE NEW PHILADELPHIA VARIETIES there was presented a programme last week well calculated to contribute to the amusement of its numerous visitors, and the management reaped a just reward. The most prominent features of the mammoth programme rendered were the performances of the Blondel Female Minstrels, Miss Clara Burton, whose rapid and graceful movements are seen to much advantage in jig dances; the exceedingly clever contortionism and ladder act of Prince Sadi d'Jalma; the Ethiopian comedians, Dick Parker and Tony Harvey; and Miss Rosalinda in favorite serio-comic songs. The performance concluded with the comic drama of "A Hundred Years Hence," which kept the attention of the visitors enchained to the last. This week an entire change of programme is announced, and the Freeman Sisters will make their re-appearance.

MISS EMMA GRATTAN has been drawing good houses at Donnelly's Olympic Theatre, Brooklyn, during the past week. She appeared in the burlesque of "Little Jack Sheppard." This week Mr. Carleton, a young Irish comedian, together with Miss Jennie Gilmer, are to be among the new stars which are to show in the Olympic firmament.

THE FOLLOWING new people opened at the Opera House, Grand Rapids, Mich., on March 30th, in addition to the regular company:—Leon Whetonny, in his laughable act of the "Union Pacific Elephant;" Miss Millie Bassoure, vocalist; Bobby McKay, clog and song and dance performer, and Charley Bartine, negro comedian. Miss Louise and M'lle Maud have closed their engagements. Good houses nightly witness the programme offered by Manager Davis, we are informed by our correspondent "Eureka." Artists and stars are wanted for this house.

THE OLYMPIC THEATRE, Chicago, Ill., is holding its own in the matter of business, and the performance as good, perhaps, as the average of variety shows. Miss Nellie Anderson is indisposed and has been unable to appear the past week. Miss Lou Rainford continues to please the boys with her well selected and finely rendered ballads. Mattie Bianca nightly appears in selected ballads, which she renders in a pleasing style. Miss Eunice Dunlap, who re-appeared on the 27th of March, is a decided favorite. Tom Williams, Gus Lee and Johnny Manning are well liked, and their several acts, dances, etc., are meeting with much success. Lee closed his engagement last week, preparatory to joining P. T. Barnum's Circus as second clown. Manning was also to leave at the same time, to join the same show.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, Grand Rapids, Mich., the fresh attractions last week were Maggie Miller, M'lle Rosa and Miss Louise Irving, vocalist.

CHARLES MCCASLIN, Thomas Dayton and James Leslie were the latest fresh appearances at Wentworth's Theatre Comique, Terre Haute, Ind.

FIELDING'S NEW OPERA HOUSE, in Toledo, O., was opened on March 28th, under the management of Johnny Fielding.

VARIETY INTELLIGENCE from Cincinnati is furnished as follows by our correspondent, writing on Mar. 31st:—"The Pacific Garden is a hall lately erected in the German portion of the city, by Mr. Kohlbrand, at one time proprietor of the old Sixth Street Varieties. In finish and beauty it will probably vie with any hall in the country. Its business, generally, is good, and on Sunday evenings it is so crowded that standing room is at a premium. The English performers now playing there are Gibbons, the contortionist; the Davenport brothers, a pair of rising young gymnasts, and Professor Francis, magician.....At the Winter Garden, located near the Pacific, George Morton, M. A. Griffin, Emma Barret and Mollie St. Martin, still remain the principal attractions.....Schoemle's Troupe of Tyrolese Warblers, who are genuine natives of the Tyrol, are at Schumann's Theatre, in the vicinity. At the Race Street Varieties the only new addition this week has been Annie W. Hill, who appears in the olio as an Indian club swinger and manipulated the sticks very well. In the concluding Can-can she also gives statuary representations, some eleven in all, and having a fine figure, which she is generous in displaying, she succeeds well. Lew Cavana has a new act for him, 'Roaring Ralph Stackpole,' and Marsh Adams appears in a solo song and act, the 'Eccentric Colored Gal.' A piece of burlesque opera called 'New Arrival of Nilsson,' by Adams, Cavana and P. H. Seamon; a farce (old) styled 'Mr. and Mrs. Browne,' and a double dance by the Misses Mollie Devon and Pattie Jerome, are the most noticeable things on the programme, the others being about a repetition of last week's bill of fare.....The Globe is still for rent and no one seems to be after it."

AT THE HOWARD, Boston, John Foster, El Nino Eddie, Earle Brothers and Levantine Brothers, Lilla and Zoe, La Petite Ettie, Mons. Gowax, J. H. Budworth, Sidney Franks, Emma Alford, M'lle Louise, Little Vic, Lisle Riddell, Olivia Dacre, Bloodwood and the Female Minstrels have been the attractions.

FIRST CLASS ARTISTS are wanted for Trimble's Varieties, Pittsburgh, Pa. Address as per advertisement.

A LADY, who is a good comic and sentimental singer, and a violinist are wanted for a parlor entertainment. See business notice in another column.

PEDANTO, the trapezist and ceiling walker, who is at present performing at the Academy of Music, Richmond, Va., where he can be addressed, states that he can be engaged.

THE RIGL SISTERS were added to the ballet troupe at the Varities Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., last week. Our correspondent says:—"The manager has evinced taste in effecting this acquisition, as they have always been special favorites here. Morrissey and Emerson reappeared on March 27th and met with a most cordial reception. Emerson and Smith, sectorial artists, contributed their share to the entertainment and amusement of the audiences. Their amateur skating act will convulse an auditory of cynics with laughter. Belle Graham appeared for the first time in Pittsburgh as a vocalist on the 27th. Her songs were encored. Charley Howard's character acts accorded the warmest commendation. Harrigan and Hart, Jerry and Belle Graham leave at the end of this (last) week. The Alhambra ballet troupe and the Rigl Sisters continue next (this) week, as also do Kynock and Smith, Morrissey Little, and the Ravenles. The Ravenles have done remarkably well as trapeze performers, considering this has been their first engagement in that line. Messrs. Jennings and Frank Bell will be among the new comers next week. Jammed houses nearly every night. This theatre has never been so prosperous as now."

AT THE BALTIMORE, MD., OPERA HOUSE, a series of entertaining performances was given last week, the principal being Julia May in her tight-rope acts, Belle Graham in her fancy dances, Jennie Howard's character songs, Nellie Howard's champion jig, Fanny May's medley dancing, Emma Gerhardt's Chinese terpsichorean feats, Victoria Rosa' graceful evolutions, and Tommy Winnette's clog dancing. Mary Rodecap and Claudia Walters also did a good double dance. The French Can-can concluded the Programme. This week, Wilson and Kernel, double dance and songists, and Josepaine Walby, skipping rope danseuse, are the chief recruits.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, New Orleans, La., the Gaiety Comique Company did an excellent business all the week ending March 26th, the several new at ractions having proved quite popular, especially the double song and dance by Hurley and Marr, who presented a new feature in one of their songs, that of forming a tableau at the end of each verse, representing the subject of the verse just sung; Messrs Eedward, Leon, Maximillian, Josef and Little Bo-Peep, of the Walhalla party, also gave an exceedingly neat parlor gymnastic act. On Sunday evening, March 19th, Mons. d'Atalie and M'lle Angela, brought their engagement to a close, their startling acts having been received nightly for three weeks, with loud applause. On Friday evening, 24th, the burlesque of "Jack Sheppard" was withdrawn, and that of the "White Cat and King Pippin" substituted with Miss Minnie Jackson as the Cat, Miss Jennie Engel as Prince Paragon, Miss Elise as Prince Precious, and Mr. Harry Guion as King Pippin. The extravaganza was handsomely put on the stage, and was played in a lively, humorous manner. This, Monday evening, 27th, an entirely new olio bill was presented, which commenced with the very laughable farce, the "Man with the Carpet Bag," in which Billy Carter, Harry Guion, Pete Lee, J. L. Connor and Wm. Eunice made much fun, after which Sam Collins gave a good German act; next followed a fine song and dance by Messrs. Hurley and Marr, who promise to become number one artists in their line of business. The juvenile members of the Walhalla Troupe danced their Pas de Cocus, Miss Elise then gave one of her favorite dances, and Billy Carter touched up his old banjo for half a dozen songs. Prof. Heinrich Schmidt gave a fine act with a revolving globe, which was in turn followed by several comic songs by Miss Jennie Engel, the remaining members of the Walhalla Troupe then gave the magic hat act, which was in turn followed by Sam Collins, Punch and Judy and Pete Lee's tamborine solo, the olio performance being brought to a close by a magnificent display of the Prismatic Fountains, throwing up volumes of gold and silver water, with several very elegant tableaux. The performance concluded with Mr. Cavanagh's grand drama, entitled 'The Fenian's Oath,' in which Mr. C. appeared as Dan Donovan, the Head Centre of County Kerry, and Mr. T. L. Conner as Roderick Desmond, both of which were finely played, as also was the Kate O'Connel by Miss Minnie Jackson, while Miss Jennie Engel, as Moonbeam, the Fairy Queen, presented a charming appearance. The drama was well put on the stage, several of the scenes being finely painted, especially that of a Rocky Pass and Branahan's Glen, looking from the Lakes of Killarney. The Gaiete company will bring their engagement to a close on Sunday evening, the 2d of April. Mrs. D. P. Bowers is announced to appear on the 3d, supported by Mr. J. C. McCollom and a full dramatic company.] So wrote our correspondent, "Crescent," under date of the 27th ult.

MISS EMMA GRAY, vocalist, terminated her engagement at the Metropolitan Hall, Washington, D. C., on April 1st—she expects to travel with a circus during the summer. Miss Iona Lang, also a songstress, succeeds her, opening on the 3d. The female minstrel scene continues to be a prominent feature. Porter is the interlocutor, and Shay and McIntyre hold forth on the ends. They need a fresh supply of funny sayings and a few new songs.

CHARLEY LEE'S THEATRE COMIQUE troupe gave a performance in Womelsdorf, Pa., March 25th. Charley Lee's efforts as a Yankee comedian were successful, and Mrs. Mattie Lee as a burlesque actress was highly spoken of by a correspondent.

MISS CORA DEVERE, serio-comic and classic statues, commenced an engagement at the Mammoth Hall Varieties, Mobile, Ala., March 20th. The other principal performers at that time were Sandy Dolan, Minnie Pell, Carrie Weston, Master Moore, Dan Ryan and Billy Kirby.

PETE CROWLEY AND JIM MURPHY, jig dancers, are to compete for a purse of fifty dollars in Taunton, Mass., on April 13th.

SYDNEY FRANKS and Emma Alford, vocalists, open at Tony Pastor's Opera House, New York, on April 10th, and they advertise for engagements after May 20th.

IONE LANG, we are informed, was presented with a diamond ring, said to be worth $150, in Philadelphia, Pa., last week.

THOMPSON'S OPERA HOUSE, Vicksburg, Miss., is said to be nightly filled with audiences, who appreciate manager Thompson's efforts to please them. The present company include Jennie Melville, Dell Melville, Tilly Beaumont, Lon Georgia, Eugene Irwin, Bobby Stanton, Billy St. George and Frank Dullzo, stage manager. First class talent is wanted for this house.

Negro Minstrelsy.

ALICE GILMORE'S FEMALE MINSTRELS performed in Burlington, N. J., March 27th; Vincentown, 28th and 29th; Pemberton, 30th; Hightstown, 31st and April 1st, and are billed to play in New Egypt, 3d; Pemberton, 4th; Red River, 5th and 6th.

KELLY & LEON closed their minstrel career in Brooklyn on the night of April 1st. Henceforth they will perform with white faces. They will play "St. Domingo" on their tour west, and as they perform this exciting drama in excellent style it ought to be successful. They brought it out at Hooley's during Lent, the worst time it could have been presented. Mr. W. C. Hudson, city editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, has written a drama, in five acts, for them, entitled "Yosemite; or, The Trail of Death," assisted by Mr. E. Wright, the business agent of the Kelly & Leon Troupe, which is to be performed in Baltimore shortly. The troupe will travel until the fall, when they will drop in upon New York for a short season. Their last week's performance in Brooklyn included the farce of the "Dead Shot," and their musical Chinese burlesque "Ching Chow Hi," the perform

VERSUS
WORRELL SISTERS.

We have just received a communication from our Business Manager,
MR. HARRY MINER,
Who states that he met the father of the
IN
Meadville, Pa.,
and that the latter gentleman informed him that he had heard that the
WALLACE SISTERS
had been using PRINTING CHECKS, &c., &c., WITH THE
WORRELL SISTERS' NAME PRINTED ON THEM,
Leading the Public to believe that they were seeing the
WORRELL SISTERS,
When in reality they were not.
MR. WORRELL also stated to MR. MINER that he first obtained this information from THE BILL POSTER
AT AKRON, OHIO,
Who stated that the
WALLACE SISTERS
Left in his charge a ticket-box, which, when opened, contained
A LARGE LOT OF CHECKS,
On which was printed
WORRELL SISTERS' N. Y. THEATRE.
Now, such reports circulated over the country would have a tendency to injure the
BRILLIANT REPUTATION MADE BY THE
SPARKLING AND DASHING
WALLACE SISTERS.
In reply to the above we have only to say that all the charges made by MR. WORRELL are
WITHOUT THE SLIGHTEST FOUNDATION IN TRUTH,
And we defy MR. WORRELL or the
WORRELL SISTERS
To prove that we have ever had in our possession anything whatever bearing the name of
WORRELL SISTERS,
And for any article we will freely give
FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS CASH.
All our
PRINTING, LITHOGRAPHS, &c., THREE SHEET BILLS, PICTORIAL HEADS, STREAMERS, &c., &c.,
Are printed from
ORIGINAL BLOCKS
Made expressly for us by
J. E. JACKSON,
LEDGER OFFICE,
